Red Rice's.

RED RICE'S, LOS ANGELES, NOVEMber 2. Congratulate us, yes, and congratulate yourselves, reader, Red Rice has just made some of the most successful buys ever made by this the most successful house of its age in Los Angeles. Realizing that owing to the prosperity of Los Angeles and vicinity there would be but few buys offering here, Red Rice has been hunting in all the busted boom towns in the country round about and has got there in good shape. Red Rice has this week bought the entire contents of a 50-room hotel; all the furniture, all the carpets, all the bedding, all the crockery, all the springs, everything, and what's of vital importance, many of the bedroom sets have never been set up and are just as they came from the factory. Further, two-thirds of the rooms had never been slept in, and none of the furniture has been used enough to take the new off. This is buying second-hand furniture as Red Rice likes to buy it. Reader, you shall have the benefit of our grand good buys, for there are more a coming. We have just closed a contract on another large hotel of fine furniture, the "Selwyn House," 35 rooms; ere you read this all the furniture, carpets, etc., will be on board a train to arrive in Los Angeles on Monday, Nov. 3. Never in the history of our house have we been so well prepared to give you bargains. Red Rice now wishes to suggest that this house seldom gets left. With an abiding confidence in the rapid growth of this the most favored region on earth we do not hesitate to venture our all in catering to your needs, and how royally the people have responded to our efforts in the past is proved by the wonderful growth of Red Rice's. Come to Red Rice's Bazaar, if for no other reason than to see the greatest array of household goods ever got together on this coast. The numbers are 143 and 145 S. Main st. Two carloads of matting came in last week. Please remember that Red Rice is the largest dealer in matting in Los Angeles—reason you can buy mattings for 20c at Red Rice's that other dealers charge 25c for; other goods in same proportion—reason further, Red Rice buys matting cheaper than any other house in Los Angeles.

That was evidently a telling right and left charge of mustard seed shot that we fired into the old cock Buzzard on Friday morning. This is the third day and the feathers are still falling; what will be left to tell the pathetic tale when we "load for bear?"

Yesterday morning those who took the trouble to wade through it, had their morning meal spoiled by a counterfeit sermon on "principle," "honor," "reputation" and "character."

He struck his gait, however, when he got to "dragging through the mire." That is an enterprise with which not only he, but the whole flock of Buzzards, are familiar and pre-eminently fitted to shine in.

The former "trusted employee and confidant" from whom this veracious (?) sermonizer gets his information did not give him a "straight tip." It was the former TOO MUCH "trusted employee" who imperiled the "competency of the widow and orphans," and it was HE who dragged the fair and spotless name of this house through the mire and left it so besmirched and blackened by reckless and incompetent MIsmanagement that it has only been by the most strenuous efforts on the part of the present management that the former prestige has been re-established; DOG-"ON" Buzzard store methods. We have been successively called a "belag," a "creature," and a "parasite," and have been compared to "snakes," "worms," "reptiles," and "other venomous creatures;" we can stand this, if the "snakes," etc., can, but there is one epithet which we dread above all others; call us a "thing" and we die.

The past record of the "air scavenger" crew who manipulate the piratical sternwheel mudscow known to fame as the Buzzard Store, is not such as to make it a healthy experiment to say too much about "MONEY and REPUTATION;" if the writer of this had preferred to BEAT his creditors instead of PAYING them, he might now have more "money," but less "reputation." See?

We never have anything on "SPECIAL SALE," we regard the chronic "special sale fiend" as a humbug and fraud of the first water. The prices we make are not merely for the day upon which they are announced, but are good TODAY, TOMORROW and FOREVER, and whether you find what you want in the list below or not, you will find it at our store (if in the legitimate Drug line,) and at the proper and correct price.

THE IRISH CAUSE.

Dillon and His Colleagues Arrive at New York.

The Nationalists Met at the Dock by Prominent Sympathizers.

An Address to Irish-Americans Asking Aid for the Cause.

Dillon and O'Brien Relate the Story of Their Escape—Several Narrow Escapes From Detection.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] William O'Brien and wife, I. D. Sullivan and wife, John Dillon and Timothy Harrington arrived this morning on the steamer La Champagne. A reception committee representing the various Irish societies met them at quarantine, and when the steamer arrived at the dock a reception was held, after which the visitors went to the Hoffman House. Gov. Hill was one of the first to call upon them. He warmly welcomed them to the city and State, expressed sympathy with their cause and signed his name to an address of welcome prepared by the Irish societies, and Mayor Grant did the same. Eugene Kelly and Joseph D. O'Donahue were also among the callers.

In a talk with newspaper men O'Brien said that out of forty by-elections held in Great Britain since the assembling of the present Parliament, fourteen had been won by the Home Rule party. This was a fair indication of the feeling of the Irish people on the question. He believed that the Tories would be forced to dissolve Parliament sooner than they anticipated. The government, he said, was not taking the proper measures, for it at first denied that a famine existed, and now admitted that there was deep distress in the country by proposing measures for its relief.

O'Brien also read an address on the situation of Irish affairs and the purport of the visit of himself and fellow-travelers to America. "We are coming to America," the address said, "by the desire and with the approval of Parnell and the Irish Parliamentary party." O'Brien stated that there was absolute unity in the ranks of the Parliamentary party and among the people. The old taunt of instability of purpose could no longer be thrown at Ireland.

Speaking of the escape of Dillon and himself, O'Brien said that they were well watched by the police and spies. When they took a special train at Limerick the police took another special train in order to keep them continually in sight. Yet they were caught napping. Neither bribes nor threats induced any one to tell the police of their departure, and Balfour's system of espionage was wasted. "The government cannot trust its own servants," continued O'Brien. "Why, on the day before we were arrested Dillon wrote me, informing me what was going to take place, although it was supposed to be a castle secret." The address continues:

We waited in Tipperary as long as there seemed the least chance of forcing a prompt disposal of the charge. As soon as the tactics of the government were quite clear we took leave to tumble their elaborate house of cards about their ears, and came away to appeal to America as last Balfour's ignoble dodge for starving out the tenantry whom he has failed to intimidate. We will, of course, return the moment our business here is finished. If we shall have, in the meantime, secured the means of preserving the Irish ranks unbroken until the general election we will not grudge Balfour ever comfort he can derive from keeping us in jail for our success.

The essence of the Tory policy in Ireland is land purchase on the landlord's own terms. To effect this the tenants' combination had to be stamped out. The tenants once smashed and disorganized under the terror of coercion the cabinet of landlords and landlord tribunals could arrange the rest at will. It was with a view to crushing the tenants' combination that all the prosecutions batonings and police outrages took place, and it was to prevent this that the Irish representatives came here.

The London Times has exultantly calculated that Balfour's policy has cost the tenants' defense fund £30,000 a year and that it cost us £20,000 more to build New Tipperary. They calculate that the Irish people at home who last year subscribed £60,000 for the evicted tenants' fund would not be able to come to the rescue this year, and that we must therefore appeal to America. Hence the Tipperary arrests on the eve of our departure. If the tenants would be awakened by the terrorism of starvation the government could carry whatever land purchase scheme they pleased, and go to the country with triumph over the success of coercion. On the other hand if Balfour has to face a general election with the confession that the landlords' syndicates, with all their power, fail to break the spirit of a couple of dozen bodies of Irish tenantry, after all these years of merciless repression, the coercion policy, already disliked, will be overwhelmed at the polls.

For the present the questions of the national fighting fund and the charitable fund are wholly separate. The danger of a famine along the western portion of the seaboard is unquestionably real and horrible. The Irish party are watching the situation with the utmost solicitude. The bill which they have called for suspending evictions for the non-payment of rent on small holdings, combined with the more liberal administration of the poor laws, would go far to avert any danger of a general famine. The opinion of the Irish party is that any general American fund poured into Ireland at this time would probably have the effect of confirming Balfour in his policy of leaving the relief of distress to private initiative, and afterwards boasting that the distress was imaginary, while large sums disbursed with an imperfect knowledge of the circumstances of the country would inevitably find their way into the pockets of the landlords, who, in the prospect of American alms, would be encouraged to extort rent from their famished tenantry.

This evening the Parliamentary Fund Association gave a reception to the delegates at the Hoffman House, about two hundred invited guests being present. Among them were Eugene Velly, Hon. Robert Roosevelt, Judges Morgan, O'Brien, and Fitzgerald, Mayor Grant, Ex-Mayor Grace, Bourke Cochran, Gen. O'Birne and President Gleason of the Municipal Council. The National League address of welcome was read by James A. A. Gorman, expressing the deepest sympathy of all true Irish-Americans and all liberal Americans for the Irish cause. It was signed by Gov. Hill, Mayor Grant and the chief officers of the Irish societies.

Each of the delegates spoke briefly. Dillon made a stirring appeal for aid, and pictured the condition of his own constituency. O'Brien said that he asked that his men be not struck down in the last hour of the winning battle, when American hearts and purses could save them.

T. D. Sullivan said that sympathy for the cause was growing in England, and prejudice passing away.

O'Brien told the reporters the story of the escape of Dillon and himself, and apparently enjoyed the telling of it. Dillon helped him with the narrative. They walked from Dublin, O'Brien said, down to Dalkey, a small port near Dublin, in company with Clancy, sub-Sheriff of Dublin. They dined at the house of Timothy Healy. Then they boarded the yacht St. Patrick, commanded by Capt. Michael Murphy, and set sail for France. They were becalmed for several days, and ran several narrow escapes of being discovered by English revenue cutters. The royal yacht Adelaide from Falmouth lay close by in one of the calms, and the fugitives could see the crew watch the St. Patrick.

JEALOUS OF ANOTHER'S WIFE.

Mixed-up Domestic Relations and Their Bloody Terminations.

COLUMBUS (O.,) Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] Tunis Amack this morning shot and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, and afterwards suicided. Amack is a divorced man with three children, the eldest being a 20-year-old boy. Mrs. Anderson has been separated from her husband some time, and also had a grown-up family. Amack has known Mrs. Anderson some time, and been greatly smitten with her. She told him a few days ago that she was going back to her husband and Amack threatened her life if she did so.

This morning he went to her house, and after a quarrel struck her down with a hatchet and then fired three bullets into her body. Rushing back to his boarding house he told his son what he had done and then terminated his own life with a bullet.

MANY SHOTS FIRED.

A POLITICAL MEETING FOLLOWED BY A LIVELY RIOT.

One Policeman Fatally Hurt and Many Bystanders Slightly Injured by Wandering Bullets—Liquor the Cause.

By Telegraph to The Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] In a riot at Jeanette last night Police Officer Pitts was struck on the head and fatally injured. Officer Clinger was also injured, but not seriously. The riot started in a drunken brawl. In the melee several shots were exchanged between the police and rioters, and more than a dozen persons were more or less hurt. Two hundred were engaged in the conflict, and today the Jeanette physicians were attending thirteen of those injured. Several of the rioters are in jail. The fight began by the officers attempting to disperse a crowd which had gathered after the adjournment of a political meeting.

INSULTED AN ACTOR.

A Highbinder Murder in the San Francisco Chinese Theater.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] Last night a shooting occurred in the Grand Chinese Theater, in which a Chinese cigar-maker named Dick Ah Ding was shot twice, once in the breast and once in the leg. He will probably die. The shooting was done by a Highbinder named Wong Fook Choy. It seems that some days ago Choy insulted a Chinese actor, and last night Ding, who belongs to a rival organization, reproached him for so doing. Choy replied by insulting Ding. Further words passed, when Choy drew a large pistol and opened fire, with the results stated. The murderer escaped and has not been found.

The wounded Chinaman died tonight.

CAPT. LEE'S FUNERAL.

His Cortege the Largest Ever Seen in Tehama County.

RED BLUFF (Cal.,) Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The remains of the late Capt. Bruce B. Lee were buried this afternoon with military, civic and Masonic honors. Gen. Montgomery's staff, Company D, Red Bluff Commandary Knight Templar and visiting Knights were in the procession. Floral emblems were in great profusion. The procession was the largest that ever followed the remains of any person to the grave in the county. The pavilion and catafalque were draped in black and American flags were draped all around the room. Flags were down at half mast and bells tolled as the procession moved through the streets to the cemetery.

A PHYSICAL MARTYR.

Confined to Her Bed During a Half Century of Helplessness.

WILLIMANTIC (Conn.,) Nov. 2.—Miss Lizzie O. Smith, widely known as "The modern martyr," died in this city today. She was born at Eastford, Conn., in 1832. She was unusually vigorous and active until 11 years old, when she was prostrated by a violent cold, which developed a disease that made her a helpless invalid. She was confined to her bed for nearly forty-five years.

IN UTTER RUIN.

Panama Canal Machinery Not Worth So Much Iron.

Columbia Hesitates About Extending the Company's Privileges.

The Liberals Make Large Gains in English Town Elections.

An Indication of the Result of a General Election—Spain Putting a Heavy Protective Duty On Imports.

By Telegraph to the Times.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The official liquidator of the Canal Company denies that the negotiations of Wyse with the Colombian government for the extension of the canal concessions have been registered. He admits, however, that the process of effecting a settlement with Colombia is slow and full of difficulty. Reliable advices from the Isthmus describe the canal works as wrecked, and say that even traces of the excavations are vanishing. The construction machinery is stated to be worthless now, and its condition is so bad that it is beyond bringing the price of old iron.

The Brazilian government has concluded negotiations with the Societé General for a railway loan. This is the first European loan of the Brazilian Republic. The Credit Mobelier has acquired the works of the Societé des Metaux for $18,000,000.

SPAIN ADOPTING PROTECTION.

The Tariff Commission Imposes Heavy Duties on Imports.

MADRID, Nov. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.]—The proceedings of the Tariff Commission, whose sittings are just ended, have been of the most marked protectionist character. Recognized free-traders even have tacitly accepted the proposals of the commission. Señor Morel, president of the commission, a staunch free-trader, has disappointed his friends by his attitude. The heavy duty which it is proposed to place on imported coal and imported iron and copper ore, it is asserted, will prove disastrous to the trade of the country if the measure becomes a law.

FRENCH CLERICALISM.

Pere Hyacinthe Attacks It in an Address From the Pulpit.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Pere Hyacinth today commenced a campaign against clericalism in his own church with a vigorous address. He said that the republic was firmly established, and after leaning toward atheism there was new danger of lapsing into clericalism. The pupils of the Jesuits, he said, were beginning to swarm in the military colleges, and the republic threatened to become a clerical government after the most bigoted pattern of the South American republics. He thought this was due to the Republicans shutting their eyes to the power of religion in society, and he advocated national churches, the rejecting of authority of the Pope allowing priests to marry, and abolishing the confessional.

LIBERAL VICTORIES.

Municipal Elections Result in the Gain of Many Seats.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Municipal elections were held in England and Wales yesterday. Where the results turned on politics the Conservatives gained 59 and the Liberals 87 seats.

The leading feature of the returns is the fact that not a single dissident Liberal success is yet recorded. The labor candidates won some seats from the Conservatives. The Chronicle says that the result will make a bad outlook for the Government, and show what will happen in the event of an appeal to the country.

Mrs. Hogg's Funeral.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The funeral of Mrs. Hogg and baby, who were murdered by Mrs. Piercey in South Hampstead October 24, took place today and was attended by an enormous crowd. The husband of the murdered woman, whose relations with Mrs. Piercey were the prime cause of the tragedy, was among the mourners. He was the object of many threatening utterances.

Held Services Themselves.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 2—A crowd of Cephalonians forced their way into the Greek church at Galeta today and performed their devotions by themselves in the absence of the priest, as a protest against the recent general closing of Greek churches. The police at first offered resistance but soon yielded to the people.

The Storming of Vitu.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The fleet has returned to Zanzibar from Vitu. The total number of British wounded in the recent fight was thirteen, whose injuries are only slight. From eighty to ninety of the enemy were killed and wounded, all being slaves and natives, not Arabs as reported.

Aiding the Irish.

LONDON, Nov. 2—As a result of Balfour's Irish tour the Government has given £3000 for the purpose of deepening the harbor of Ballina, for which an appropriation has been desired for a long time.

Grand Duke Nicholas.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 2.—Grand Duke Nicholas, who became insane during the recent army manœuvers, is now completely paralyzed and in a comatose condition. There is no danger of a violent crisis.

A Treasonable Measure.

PARIS (Tex.,) Nov. 2.—The bill disfranchising any member of the Choctaw Indians, either by blood, adoption or marriage into the tribe, who has taken, or may hereafter take the oath of allegiance to the Government of the United States, has passed both houses and received the approval of the Governor.

The Garibaldi Monument.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The fund for a monument in honor of Garibaldi is receiving many subscriptions in France, a fact which shows that a better feeling toward Italy exists among the French people.

THE EAST SIDE.

The Park Business Not Yet Settled—General News.

SPORTING NEWS.

A Dull Week On the Eastern Tracks.

THE LEADING COAST EVENTS.

Stamboul, Palo Alto and Sunol Doing Some Good Work—The Baseball Outlook—Miscellaneous Notes.

The past week has witnessed no sensational events in racing circles. The season of 1890 on Eastern courses is now practically over, and the balance of the fall and winter racing will be confined to the Elizabeth, Linden, Guttenberg and Clifton race tracks in New Jersey.

It is altogether different out here on the coast. The Blood Horse Association will have a grand meeting this month. San José is coming to the front with an all-running meeting soon after the Blood Horse meeting, and Coronado Beach has hung up $8000 in purses for a two weeks' running and trotting meeting in December. Nearly all of the famous trotters and pacers in California are now in condition to do some record-breaking, and before the snow falls in the East the world's trotting record and the stallion record may be held by Pacific-coast horses. Stamboul, in a private trial at the Bay District track last week, did two fast half miles. The first was made in 1:06, the last quarter being trotted in 31 seconds. The second half mile was trotted the same afternoon in 1:03½. From this it can readily be seen that Stamboul is in condition to lower Nelson's record, and all California hopes that he will.

During the past racing season August Belmont has won $167,000, John A. Morris $158,000, and Senator Hearst, who has often been called the unluckiest man on the turf, has won $119,000. In nearly every instance the greater portion of these sums have been won by one horse, namely, Potomac for Belmont, Russell for Morris, and Tournament for Hearst. J. B. Haggin's winnings have not yet been published, but he must stand well up in the lead, with Baldwin next.

The Undine stables, including Racine, Rinfax, Glenlivet and the pacer Adonis are once again on the coast, having arrived last Saturday at Sacramento. In speaking of Racine an exchange says: "Eastern racing men evidently have formed a great opinion of Racine's form as a race horse, for several prominent owners have attempted to lease his racing qualities, but we can authoritatively state that T. H. Williams has made all the necessary arrangements, and that Racine will again carry the pretty Undine jacket in the East, and if he meets with average luck, Eastern race-goers will have a still higher opinion of the bay son of Bishop, for say what they will, they have never seen his true form, as he was never really right after his sickness."

The Dwyer Brothers, last season the most prominent race owners on the turf, have decided to separate, and on next Tuesday will sell all their horses in training except the yearlings and possibly Longstreet, and it is almost certain that the mighty Kingston will be bought in by Mike Dwyer. The horses to be sold include Kingston, Hanover, Inspector B., Long Island, Aurania, Blackburn, Sir John, Houston, Caldwell, Congress, Flatbush, June Day, Kingsbridge, Longford, Bluebird, Baldwin, Baychester, Blacklock, Last King, Our Fellow, Westchester, Young George, Mikado, Ada B., Bush Bolt, Envoy, Hannibal, Hempstead, Himlex, Longshore, Blue Dress, Extra Dry, Hardwork and Last Chance.

During the middle of last week Senator Stanford and Arie Lathrop, Esq., drove out to the race track at the Bay District, at San Francisco, and looked over Palo Alto, Sunol and the rest of the Palo cracks. Senator Stanford was highly delighted with the appearance of Sunol, who looked as neat and fresh as a trim little schoolgirl. She was driven a half in 1:06, and negotiated it so easily that the Senator went away with hopes of her yet spoiling the records. Palo Alto, the pride of the ranch, was generally conceded to be in better trim than he has been for several years—as hard as nails and apparently as sound as a good dollar.

On Saturday Marvin gave Sunol her first fast work since she returned, and getting her well warmed up drove her a mile out. The first half was easily compassed in 1:08½, and from there home the peerless bay was doing her best and a wonderful best too, for she passed under the wire in 2:12, last half 1:03½. How long can Maud S's record stand if Sunol keeps sound? and there seems no earthly reason why she should not. Palo Alto was given a mile in 2:15½, last half in 1:04½, and like his stable companion he did it fearlessly and resolutely.

The Breeder and Sportsman has this to say of Marigold's recent two-mile race in this city: "Marigold's two miles in 3:30½ at the recent Los Angeles meeting was the fastest time ever made in a race in California, and the fastest ever made in a race in America except by McWhirter, who covered the distance in 3:30. An attempt was made to give Monte Christo a similar record about four years ago, but none of the private watches agreed with it and it is generally believed to have been an error, as no previous nor subsequent performance of Monte Christo indicated that he was even a second-class horse. The only two times that 3:30 has been beaten in a two-mile race was in Australia and, on both occasions, in the Melbourne cup. Sheet Ancho did it in 3:20½, an aged horse with 104 pounds up, and Dunlop, a 5-year-old, with 115 in the saddle, in 3:28½. Considering that he was the same age as Ten Broeck and carried five pounds more, he does not suffer by comparison."

BASEBALL.

The season is drawing rapidly to a close in this State, and from present indications it looks as though the 'Friscos, crippled as they are, will in the pennant. Lookabaugh and Stevens, their catchers, are both disabled, and Ward, formerly of this city, is playing back-stop for the team. He is a clever little catcher, but has a poor throwing arm; still his work so far has been very creditable.

The following is the standing of the clubs up to October 30th, and since then San Francisco has increased her lead by two more games:

SUMMARY.	Played	Won	Lost	Percentage
San Francisco	121	69	52	.570
Oakland	120	68	52	.567
Sacramento	119	66	53	.554
Stockton	120	37	83	.308

The Los Angeles team for the winter season is reported as follows: Pitchers, Knell of Philadelphia and O'Brien of Brooklyn; catchers, Hardie of Boston and Milligan of Philadelphia; infielders, Carroll, Philadelphia; Lowe, Boston; Smalley, Cleveland; Burns, Chicago, and possibly Corcoran of Pittsburgh; outfielders, Fogarty, Philadelphia; Tom Brown, Boston, and Bill Brown, New York. Of the above Knell, Carroll, Smalley, Hardie, Fogarty and the two Browns are California players.

The report that Marco Hellman, manager of the local team, is stranded financially in Chicago is indignantly denied by his friends, who assert that Mr. Hellman has all the funds needed to carry out his plans, but owing to the absence of his father from this city, a recent message for funds has been unattended to. The friends of Mr. Hellman and those in a position to know say that Los Angeles will be treated to the finest baseball playing ever seen on the coast.

Dungan, the Santa Ana cyclone, heads the batting list in the California League.

Fred Carroll, of the Pittsburg team of the Players' League, is now on the coast. He says he will do no more backstop work, but will hereafter be seen permanently on first base, a position he will play in the Los Angeles team.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Billy Manning, the middleweight pugilist of this city, has just returned from San Diego, where he fought a pugilist named Scott on last Sunday a week ago. Manning was knocked out in three rounds, but explains his defeat by saying that he entered the ring without any training, owing to the recent loss of his home by fire on Pico Heights, that event causing him to abandon his training. He has challenged Scott to fight him to a finish for $500 or $1000, London rules, but as yet has received no reply to his challenge. While in San Diego Billy was presented with an elegant gold-headed cane by several of his admirers.

Jim Corbett of San Francisco is out with a challenge to fight Slavin, and if ever the two men meet California will certainly have a first-class exponent of the art fistiana in Corbett. Slavin will not dispose of him in two rounds, as he did McAuliffe, but will find he has bitten off considerable more than he can chew when he tackles the scientific ex-Olympian, Jim Corbett.

KENILWORTH.

ARE RIVERS SHOALING?

The Western Streams Seem to Indicate That They Are.

[San Francisco Call.]

Attention has once more been called to the gradual shoaling of rivers in the western portion of the continent, and the prediction is uttered by an engineer that the effect of irrigation will be to render some of our principal rivers non-navigable. The engineer declares that within the next ten years the Missouri will have been so depleted by irrigation canals that it will cease to be navigable even by the smallest craft.

This is a matter of importance, and in considering it it is well to go slowly and to make sure of the facts as we go. We may therefore observe, to begin with, that there are no irrigation canals to speak of drawing water from the Upper Missouri, and that, therefore, the theory that its shoaling is caused by irrigation rests upon a statement which is untrue. The river Missouri is navigable for light-draft vessels for 2000 miles or more in certain seasons of the year. So far as we know there may be as much water in the river bed as there ever was within the memory of man. It is not a pleasant river to navigate because it is full of shifting bars on which there are only a few inches of water, and from this cause it is not utilized for transportation to much extent by the communities through whose territory it flows. But the evidence that its volume is gradually decreasing is not complete enough to warrant absolute conviction that such is the case.

It is otherwise with rivers which head in the high lands further south, such as the Arkansas, the Rio Grande, the Platte, the Kaw, the Smoky Hill, on the east slope of the range. Ample and indisputable evidence demonstrates that these rivers are steadily diminishing in volume. We can see where their borders formerly were and how far they have since receded. Their gradual shrinkage justifies apprehensions that, like the streams which once filled the dry arroyos of California, they will some day dry up altogether, or at all events that the great rivers like the Arkansas will some day dwindle to the proportions of the Smoky Hill, which was once navigable, but which the traveler on horseback now sometimes crosses without even noticing it. The same shrinkage is observable in the rivers of California—the Sacramento, the San Joaquin, the American, the Feather, and the streams which flow into the ocean in the southwestern counties. All carry less water than they did. Whether their volume is still decreasing year by year hydrographers have not positively stated, but it probably is. The diminution in their case cannot be ascribed to irrigation, for except in parts of the San Joaquin Valley and in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties the quantity of water diverted for this purpose has been small. Some other cause must be assigned for the phenomenon.

Professors of physical geography have suggested that the earth's supply of water is gradually diminishing, that the rivers are slowly drying up, and that by and by their beds will be deep ravines with a thread of water trickling at the bottom. To substantiate this theory, it would be necessary to show that the shoaling which is observed in rivers which head in the Rocky Mountains and the Sierras is likewise noticeable in the rivers of other parts of the world. That is not the case. Data are wanting for exact comparisons. But, so far as marine reports show, the volume of water in such Eastern rivers as the St. Lawrence, the Hudson, the Deleware, the Mississippi is about as copious as when America was first settled by white men; nor are there any records which create a suspicion that in ancient times the depth of the Old World rivers, such as the Rhone, or the Nile, or the Volga, or the Ganges, or the Euphrates, was greater than it is today. From obvious causes, rivers shoal as they pass large cities; but—with the exception of Western America—there appears to be no reason for believing that the great rivers of any portion of the world carry less water to the ocean than they did at any former historic period.

Why this portion of the globe should constitute an exception, it is for scientists to discover. So far as we can guess from the meager statistics which are at our command, the rainfall is as copious as it ever was; indeed, the development of agriculture must render that a certainty. Why, then, has the Sacramento lost so large a proportion of its volume since the first discoveries of gold, and why is the Arkansas, which was once a mighty river in Lake County, Colorado, a mere dribbling rivulet?

A condensed-air motor will be tested on one of the lines of the Baltimore city passenger railway.

THE GOLDEN FLOWER.

Increased Interest in Chrysanthemum Culture.

THE GOOD RESULTS OF THE FAIR

Artistic Possibilities of the Flower—New Features for the Coming Week—The Musical Programme Excellent.

The two fairs of the chrysanthemum have so popularized it that it will soon be adopted into every fine garden in this city. Its love of dry heat and hardiness peculiarly fit it to clothe Southern California with a fall vesture of exquisite beauty. If there was one unexpressed criticism on this lovely land and its season of fruits it was the lack of some rare, bold, strong, striking flower as a central figure for fall flowers.

The chrysanthemum has come, and for two seasons has stood in royal, queenly beauty before the public and modestly said, "How will I do?" and the tens of thousands who have attended the fairs attest the welcome reception.

For decorative purposes it is unrivalled even by the rose. As a cut flower it will keep in unchanged water for days unfaded. As a potted plant it will hold its bloom in full display for over a month. As a plant for bedding and massing in single colors, or grouping in artistic blending or contrast, it is simply unequaled.

The "heavenly beauty," the "Mikado's palace," the "falling snow," the "bride" and several others of pure white, and nearly as large as a pint cup, would mass either singly or in one bed of several hundred plants with indescribable effect.

By training some high and some low in the bed there could be produced the effect of a miniature mountain of solid snow. By artistically grouping the bronze and gray colors amid the snow could be easily produced the effect of stones and bare peaks.

By judiciously blending the various hues, and training the rear plants of a large bed, say seven feet high, and then sloping the front down to a height of say one foot, setting the plants ten inches apart, there could be produced a bank of living flowers the beauty and effect of which in a front yard could not be described in words. Groups in pyramids and solid blocks of various shapes would adorn a lawn or grounds with a rich mass of floral decorations.

How the imagination loves to picture a journey down one of the lovely streets with every residence embowered in vying scenic beds of all the gorgeous colorings so richly displayed at this fair. After the first crop of flowers mature, by cutting them off a second crop of smaller flowers will take their places.

Now is the time for lovers of these flowers to select plants by their colors, and mature designs in which to use them.

By doing this and securing a few plants of each color, by spring can be raised from slips and subdividing of roots several hundred of each kind, ready for full fall use in masses or groups of any design. THE TIMES issues of last Friday and Saturday contained valuable information on the history and Japanese method of cultivating this flower. Copies should be secured at the fair by all who desire to produce good results in cultivation.

Today the Redondo exhibit is to be entirely renewed. No expense or effort is spared to eclipse its former effect. The special exhibits of the others will be renewed, and the general effect of the hall arranged so as to show an entirely different effect. The receipts of last week show how well the people enjoyed the floral display.

NOTES.

The Monrovia delegation, consisting of the following ladies, had charge of the special-exhibit booth Saturday: Miss Henrietta Bancroft, president Monrovia College; Misses Curran, teacher; M. L. Bennett, teacher; Dora Whitcomb, Bessie Whitcomb, Mary Bricknell, Edna Bricknell and Mrs. Whitcomb.

Seventy-five orphans, in charge of Mrs. Moss, were admitted Saturday afternoon free of charge, and treated to a liberal supply of ice cream and cake by Master Charley Duckworth. A number of school children were also admitted at reduced rates, and seemed to enjoy themselves most thoroughly.

Mesdames Moore, Widney and Parmelee disposed of a large number of choice chrysanthemum plants, the same not to be removed until the close of the fair.

The tallest chrysanthemums are exhibited by J. W. Jeffries of Los Angeles, and attract much attention. Some of the plants are over eight feet in height.

EXPLORER STANLEY.

An Explorer for Cash and Fame—Principally the Former.

[Sacramento Bee.]

Months and months ago the Bee objected to the popular adulation of Henry M. Stanley. It gave him credit for his pluck, for his enterprise, for his indefatigable spirit, for indomitable courage and unyielding will in the face of great obstacles. But it claimed that he was an African explorer, not from any motive of humanity or Christianity, not from any benefit that might accrue to science, nor for any geographical or historical facts that might be added to the world's lore, but simply and solely for cash and for fame—but principally for the former. His oft-repeated assertions that he had the good of the black man at heart, and that he desired to evangelize him, it characterized as the rankest kind of hypocrisy. It pictured Stanley as a courageous freebooter and adventurous Hessian, with rifle in one hand and Bible in the other, bent on getting all the booty he could while ambushed behind the protecting falsehood that he was acting solely in the interest of science, geography, humanity and Christianity. A howl went up from various quarters over what many good people considered a sacrilegious assault upon a demi-god. But time has shown that The Bee was more nearly correct than its critics, and that the opinion frequently expressed of Stanley by this paper bids fair to be that of the civilized world. Lieut. Troup, who was with Stanley, says:

Mr. Stanley is a great explorer, but he went into this for fame and what he could get out of it. He has no more philanthropy than my boot. I will go further and say that the expedition was in the nature of a speculation and not a philanthropic relief movement. The capitalists who backed it were after the ivory which Emin Pasha was supposed to have collected. The officers of the expedition had a promise of a certain share of the big supply of ivory which was expected as a reward for their services.

Emin Pasha's release was a secondary consideration entirely. He didn't want to be released. He had been up there ten or twelve years and held his own all right.

This fact explains the entire situation, and the expedition must necessarily lose some of the glamour which surrounds it when it is known that greed for fame and riches, and not humanity, prompted the movement.

The charges made by others against Stanley are serious and most disgraceful, and the "dignified silence" which he has heretofore preserved only tends to lend strength to the accusations against him.

Sorosis and Dolls.

[New York Sun.]

Sorosis promises to introduce here a great show of dolls, which are to be contributed by kindly folk everywhere, high and low, and given away after the exhibition, with the proceeds of the latter, to the children of the poor. The scheme is a good one. It has been in use in England for a dozen years, pushed by Mr. Labonchere and others, and must have done great good, carrying a ray of kindness and warmth to many homes, blessing giver and receiver and amusing all concerned. Only of late has the phonographic cylinder been introduced into the doll's internal construction, and if Sorosis takes early care that the contributors to its show as far as possible make use of this device, sending in dolls that can be wound up from the back and are good for half an hour's straightaway conversation before they run down, the display will undoubtedly be a greater success than any of its predecessors across the water.

Some of the contributors announced are personages of great historical interest, and the Duchess d'Uzes's doll might be made to rehearse her present opinion of Boulanger, and that of Carmen Sylva, a Roumanian ode, carrying, mayhap, an echo of the 'larum of Tambourgi or the battle horns of Suwarrow. In fact the suggestion opens up no end of possibilities, and is well worth the Sorosian attention.

Howells and Kipling.

[New York Sun.]

Mr. William D. Howells bewails the fondness of the public for the writings of Rider Haggard and Rudyard Kipling. He takes comfort, however, in the thought that thi predilection on the part of the community is only a fad. Tolstoism, Ibsenism, Howellism and Zolaism are not fads, of course. They are steps in the intellectual evolution of the race. But, after all, men are only overgrown boys, and they rejoice in the American and Indian tales of the Englishmen referred to. When Haggard struck the spoor of success and began to trek toward the highlands of international popularity, the realists cried out in dismay: "Surely this is a revolution!" Then came Kipling, "the man from nowhere," and joined Haggard in his assault on the citadel, behind which so many modern writers have taken refuge. But Mr. Howells says that if you prefer Kipling to a certain obscure Italian realist, whom he cites, you should put on sackcloth and ashes and weep for your lack of good taste. And Mr. Howells is an honorable man.

The New National Park.

[Chicago Herald.]

The new National Park takes in the entire drainage area of the Yosemite and much more. It embraces the whole of the upper Tuolumne River, with the Hetch Hetchy Valley and the greater part of the Tuolumne watershed. It includes Mount Lyell and its glaciers, Lake Eleanor and the Mariposa, Merced and Tuolumne groves of big trees. It stretches from Lake Eleanor to Wawona and beyond, and from Hazel Green below Crane Flat to the highest ridge of the Sierra. It is about fifty miles in length by thirty-five in width, and considerably exceeds the State of Rhode Island in area. This magnificent reservation will be by far the most beautiful park in the world. It will lack the wierd marvels of Yellowstone—the geysers, the painted rocks and the stalagmitic formations—but in the magnificence and the charm of the forest, cliff and waterfall it will be beyond comparison.

The Power of the West.

[Sioux City Journal.]

So vastly and so suddenly has the power of the West in the Government been increased lately that the full significance of the change is not yet appreciated even in the West. The admission of six new States, adding twelve Western Republican senators and several Western Republican representatives, together with the great increase of the population of the Western States, gives the West a power in Congress and the Electoral College which has only to be wisely used to be decisive. If to this new power of the West be added the reinforcements of West Virginia and Missouri the strength of the West will be irresistible. The result of the change would be to abate the insufferable nuisance of the Solid South by making its solidity insignificant.

FRESH LITERATURE.

MILLIONAIRES OF A DAY: An Inside History of the Great Southern California Boom. By THEODORE S. VAN DYKE. (New York: Fords, Howard & Hurlbert. For Sale by Stoll & Thayer, Los Angeles.)

Readers of other books by Mr. Van Dyke (his "Southern California," his "Rifle, Rod and Gun in California," his treatise "The Still Hunter"), will know that in "Millionaires of a Day" they have a treat before them.

His Knowledge of Southern California, every square mile of which he has hunted over, and every portion and product of which he is familiar with, gives him a great advantage in treating his material; while his style is so crisp, his portrayals of human nature so witty, his descriptions of the land so admirable, that—even if one has no interest in real estate "booms"—he will enjoy every single page of the book.

But, as a matter of history, also, this little volume has a high value; the conditions of real and of fanciful growth are so clearly set forth that, for any man who has interest in land anywhere, this shrewd analysis of a real estate craze which would have ruined any other land than the one it swept over, will commend itself as of solid worth.

Let anyone pick up the book and read the conversation between two travellers and a Southern California ranchero—pp. 9 to 19, and he will not be satisfied until he has read the whole story. It is as apt and clever as anything that this charming writer has produced.

THE UPPER TEN. A novel of the Snobocracy. By W. H. BALLOU, author of "A Ride on a Cyclone," etc., etc. Illustrated by H. Clay Coultans. (New York: United States Book Company. For sale by Stoll and Thayer, Los Angeles.)

This volume belongs to the class of extravagant fiction of the Jules Verne order and recites many possible and impossible incidents in such a way as to kindle the imagination and fire the fancy. It is a mixture of sound theories, novel situations and grotesque fancies, and may possibly embody the germ of many marvelous inventions. It is a novelty in the way of book making, although through it all runs a thread of romance with happy ending.

The Vanderbilt Horses.

[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will be the envy of all the other society women in town during the coming season by reason of her superb carriage horses and her prize coachman. She first saw the horses in Paris last June, when they were the property of Mr. Thorn, a rich banker. He refused to part with them when Mrs. Vanderbilt's agents first applied, but he finally relented when he learned how she longed for them, and he sold the pair for $12,000. They are demi-sang Percherons, and are pronounced the most beautifully matched pair of horses ever seen. They present a perfect equine picture. Having got the finest horses in Paris, Mrs. Vanderbilt determined to lure away the finest coachman. She made liberal offers to Guillot, the favorite postillion of Napoleon III, and he accepted them. So Mrs. Vanderbilt will display to New Yorkers a turnout which for beauty, style and perfection in every way has never been seen here.

The Chino Sugar Factory.

[Chino Champion.]

Henry T. Oxnard telegraphed on the 22d to the effect that he would leave New York the end of the week and come straight here and settle all his business with Mr. Gird, which means the details of the contract for the sugar factory on the Chino ranch. Carl Trostroff, representative of manufacturers of beet sugar machinery in Germany, writes that he had met Mr. Oxnard at Grand Island, and "agreed with him in all parts for the intended beet sugar factory."

The Situation in Nevada.

[Boston Herald.]

Nevada has lately lost both her Governor and her Lieutenant-Governor by death, but the little bailiwick proposes to get along without those officials until the next election. As they don't have any cattle shows in Nevada, there is not much for the Governor to do at this season of the year.

Henry Watterson should not allow the star-eyed goddess to become too personal. In a recent article in referring to Speaker Reed he spoke of him as "the greasy mountebank from Maine."

WONDERFUL CURES MADE BY

DR. WONG

During the Seven Years that He Has Been Located in Los Angeles, California.

Three months ago my daughter was taken sick, bloated terribly, limbs became cold and finally she lost consciousness and one side became paralyzed and she was given up to die. Dr. Wong's medicine restored her to perfect health.
MRS. MARY SCULLY, 609 Gallardo St., Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 1, 1890

Six years ago my son was very sick. I employed three different doctors for three weeks, but none of them afforded any relief, nor could they tell me the kind of disease my son was afflicted with. When it was evident my son couldn't live Dr. Wong examined him and said that he was suffering from one of the 21 forms of stomach diseases. Dr. Wong's medicine relieved him at once and effected a permanent cure in a few days' time and he has never been sick or taken any medicine since taking Dr. Wong's medicine. JOHN GENILA,
Oct. 29, 1890. 135 S. Workman St., Los Angeles, Cal.

After I had suffered severely from blood poisoning and had failed to get relief from other doctors, I took medicine from Dr. Wong and was completely cured in two months' time. I consider Dr. Wong the most able physician that I have ever known of in forty years' observation and experience. J. D. STERLE,
Nov. 1, 1890. 257 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Cal.

Two months ago my wife took medicine of Dr. Wong for bronchitis and asthma, now she is in the best of health and is enjoying life. For fifteen years she suffered and during that time I employed five different physicians and paid them hundreds of dollars, but none of them ever benefitted her in the least. All the doctors advised me to move to another climate as the only thing that would ever afford her relief.
Nov. 1, 1890. WM. H. PENDLETON, Jr., Downey, Los Angeles, Cal.

DR. WONG has cured over 2000 people who were afflicted with nearly every form of the various diseases the human flesh is heir to.

Fully 97 per cent of these cures were made of wrecks that could not find relief in the other system of medicine as practiced in America and Europe.

In Dr. Wong's system of medicine there are 401 different diseases, and he cures 387 of them, including 8 of the brain, 72 of the eye, 2 of the ear, 12 of the throat, 8 forms of asthma, 7 forms of catarrh, 15 forms of heart disease, 9 forms of liver disease, 20 forms of spleen disease, 12 forms of skin disease, 10 of the 13 kinds of cancer, 6 of the 7 kinds of tumors, 18 of rheumatism, 28 of the 30 forms of consumption, 8 of blood diseases.

There are also over 3000 kinds of medicine (all herbs no poisons) which he imports direct and which have been used in China 5000 to 6000 years.

Dr. Wong locates all diseases by the pulse, without asking a question.

GOLDSWORTHY.

Six years ago John Goldsworthy voluntarily wrote the following letter to THE TIMES indorsing Col. Markham:

To the Editor of The Times—SIR: Of late I have seen several articles referring to Col. Markham's employing Chinamen at the Oro Grande mines. I was one of the original locaters of that series of mines and am thoroughly conversant with all its affairs from its inception, and know whereof I speak. I wish to state, with all due respect for my friend, Dr. Conger, that at the time the attempt was made to introduce Chinamen to replace the white miners at that mine Col. Markham was absent in the East, and that Dr. Conger is mistaken about his being present at that time. I also wish to say that I have had quite extensive business relations with Col. Markham, which have been so satisfactory that I shall not only vote for him, but most cordially support him among my friends.

Respectfully,

JOHN GOLDSWORTHY,
Office 53 Temple Block.

September 25, 1884.

Yesterday Mr. Goldsworthy came out with a letter in the Herald, taking back all he had said about Col. Markham and stating that he now believed him to be quite another sort of a man.

This is very thin. In 1884 Mr. Goldsworthy, after having had "quite extensive business relations" with Markham, thought so much of him that he was moved to cordially support him among his friends. Now he discovers that Markham is entirely unworthy of support.

What are sensible people to think of this remarkable change of front on Mr. Goldsworthy's part? Is it attributable to any change in the character of Col. Markham, or rather to a change of a spiteful and vengeful nature in Mr. Goldsworthy's feelings toward him, due to some personal transaction, which did not go entirely to Mr. Goldsworthy's liking? Are the thousands of Southern California citizens, who know and esteem Markham, to suddenly change their opinion of him at the bidding of this man Goldsworthy, because that individual declares, with a few strokes of the pen, that, in his estimation, Col. Markham is not a good man, as he supposed, but a very bad man?

Mr. Goldsworthy, you have stultified yourself. To vent your petty, ignoble spite, you have gone to the trouble of writing yourself down in public as a man who is willing to call himself a liar to gratify his spleen. You and your running-mate, Conger, should emigrate. You have both forfeited all claim on the respect of this community.

THE TOADY "TROMBONE."

In its account of the reception tendered to "Stanford and Markham," the Trombone, which is never so happy as when engaged in the incense burning business, published a speech covering nearly a column, purporting to have been delivered at the Pavilion by Tom Fitch last Saturday night, and entirely devoted to eulogy of the gentleman who has engaged Mr. Fitch's oratorical services during the present campaign. The truth is, as mentioned in the account of the meeting published in THE TIMES, that, owing to the lateness of the hour, Mr. Fitch spoke but a few minutes. He made no reference to Senator Stanford.

In the course of the speech which was not delivered, as reported in the Trombone, occurs the following passage, to which we took exception a week ago:

Gentlemen, Leland Stanford is California's foremost and best-beloved citizen, and so long as he consents to accept the United States Senatorship it would be a simple impertinence for any other Republican to aspire to it. [Great applause.]

It is needless to say that, had Mr. Fitch ventured to make a remark so insulting to all self-respecting Republicans, it would not have been received in this community with "great applause," or with applause of any description.

But what shall we think of a newspaper which, in its eagerness to lick the shoes of a wealthy man, will thus distort facts and gratuitously insult the party whose cause it professes to champion?

THE CONGRESSIONAL VOTE.

Do not let the importance of the Congressional election be lost sight of. California should elect six Republican members of Congress this week. It should do this to indorse the good work done by the Republican party in the last session and to insure the future prosperity of the State. The Democrats throughout the country are making desperate efforts to secure control of the Fifty-second Congress, in order that they may undo the beneficial work of the protectionists. There should be no need to impress upon the people of California the propriety of returning to Congress men who are in sympathy with a party which has created enlarged markets for our raisins, hops, wines, barley, fruit, lumber, and quicksilver, and granted a bounty to our sugar manufacturers. Californians would be short-sighted indeed to send a single free trader to Congress. It is only the importers and the agents of foreign manufacturers who can have any interest in doing so, and that class is not large in this State.

LET California do her share toward keeping the control of Congress in the hands of the party which has made such a brilliant record during the late session, by electing the Republican Congressional candidates as follows:

At Large.....J. C. CAMPBELL
District I.....J. A. BARHAM
District II.....G. G. BLANCHARD
District III.....JOS. MCKENNA
District IV.....JOHN T. CUTTING
District V.....E. J. LOUD
District VI.....W. W. BOWERS

WE have received several strong indorsements of E. A. Forrester, Republican candidate for Supervisor in the Third District. THE TIMES can vouch for these indorsements and for Mr. Forrester, who is a good citizen and a good Republican. The attacks which have been made upon him in certain quarters should help him among all who do not believe that a man should be boycotted because he has the courage of his opinions. Mr. Forrester should receive every Republican vote in the Third District.

THE State Board of Horticulture has issued a call for a State convention of fruit-growers, to convene at Santa Cruz, November 18 to 21 inclusive. Many subjects of great interest will come before the convention for consideration, and among others, the advisability of forming a union with Florida fruit-growers, the exhibition of California products at the coming Columbian World's Fair, a report of the Eastern fruit shipments, etc. This convention is called to enable fruit-growers and others interested to come together for a general interchange of ideas and be profited thereby, and an invitation is extended to all interested.

THE ACT OF A GENTLEMAN.

An act on the part of Mr. W. U. Masters, Democratic candidate for County Clerk, has come to the knowledge of THE TIMES, for which he is entitled to credit, and that credit we do not hesitate to accord to him. Mr. Masters recently received from an anonymous source a type-written copy of some scurrilous and indecent "poetry" directed at Col. Markham, and intended to damage his character and candidacy. To the doggerel was attached, with an insolence born of depravity, cowardice and villainy, the initials of a noted author, and the vile stuff was accompanied by a forged letter of transmittal bearing the forged and bungling signature of a well-known literary lady of this city. The object of the anonymous scoundrel who sent it was of course to induce Mr. Masters to make use of the stuff for campaign purposes. But he was too much of a man to do so, and refused. He mailed the matter to the proper party, a Republican citizen of Los Angeles, with a letter saying: "I am not using this kind of literature."

By this act Mr. Masters has again shown himself to be a gentleman and a fair political opponent; and though THE TIMES is opposed to him in politics, and is supporting his rival, it can do no less, in justice and honor, than state the facts as they are with respect to the above transaction.

THERE is a possibility that Dr. C. C. O'Donnell, eminent as an abortionist, may be elected Mayor of San Francisco. The San Franciscans are to be commiserated, but then, O'Donnell is only the natural outgrowth of the present condition of municipal politics in the large cities of the country.

THERE is scarcely any doubt about Markham's election, still, no Republican should make this an excuse for staying away from the polls. The indorsement of honest State government should be made so distinct and overwhelming that the Democrats cannot misconstrue it.

IF you vote for Buckley's Pond, you must not grumble if you have to pay heavier State taxes than ever during the next few years. That forty-five per cent. limit won't amount to anything if Buckley has his man in power and his lambs are crying out to be fed.

LOS ANGELES did pretty well in the election of two years ago. There is no reason why it should not do even better this year, with one of our favorite sons to vote for at the head of the ticket.

THERE is room for repentance up to the last hour. Respectable Democrats, who object to Boss Buckley, may yet decide to vote for Markham and clean government.

WE publish this morning an interesting review of Col. Markham's campaign, by "Hank Wagoner," THE TIMES correspondent who has accompanied the Republican candidate through the State and kept our readers informed of his movements.

RESPECTABLE Democrats are disgusted with Buckley. Will any Republicans help to saddle him upon the State for another term?

PASADENA will honor Markham this evening in grand style. Let as many Los Angeles Republicans as possible go and help.

VOTERS will please bear in mind that if they do not vote before 5 o'clock tomorrow they will not vote at all.

A VOTE for Pond is a vote for the continuance of extravagance and corruption in State government.

THE MARKHAM ROSE.

The Origin of the Famous Emblem That Has Become the Republican Campaign Insignia.

On the 30th of March, 1890, THE LOS ANGELES TIMES first published the cartoon that is reproduced below. It appeared in connection with, and in contrast to, another cartoon illustrating "The Pactolian Stream," and the rose picture was entitled "Farming on the Uplands."

"HANK WAGONER'S" POEM.

A few days after the appearance of the above cartoon, the following poem, suggested by it, was originally printed in THE TIMES:

THE MARKHAM ROSE.

In a vale which is swooning in beauty,
At the feet of the peaks of snow.
There is rooted a beautiful flower
That is just beginning to blow;
It is one of the "hardiest bloomers"
That the flower man's catalogue shows,
And of course I need hardly remark that
It's known as the Markham rose.

It's the "shade" of a "town" that's "painted"
Perhaps somewhat like blood that's shed,
Or, if you want facts more specific,
It's a magnificent cardinal red;
And of all the radiant blossoms
A'blooming, I do not suppose
There's a posy so gay in this land today
As the beautiful Markham rose.

And it's wonderful how it is spreading,
This posy so rich and so rare,
Why, from San Diego to Shasta
It is blossoming everywhere!
At "the bay" its bright hues are resplendent,
Up at Humboldt every mother's son knows
That there isn't a bloom in this flowery land
That equals the Markham rose.

Hence I'd say to you gently and kindly,
In a sort of a fatherly way,
If you want to be right in the fashion—
Chic—debonair—gaudy—au fait—
Pin into your buttonhole, chappies,
This flower that flutters and glows
O'er the breadth of this glorious climate,
And is known as the Markham Rose.

HANK WAGONER.

This was the origin of the Markham Rose.—EDITOR TIMES.

STAGE TONES.

Sensational Realism at the Operahouse.

"THE STILL ALARM" TONIGHT.

How a Theater's License Was Revoked—A Stage-struck Girl's Experiences—Chicago's Amusements—The Owls.

The past week at the theaters has been remarkable only for the very weak attempt at minstrelsy offered at the Grand for a few nights to diminishing audiences. The public appears to have expected the coming of Cleveland's Minstrels, the company that made such a favorable impression and did so well here some months ago. When it was realized that the minstrels were genuine colored men, mere imitators of burnt cork artists and without a tithe of their talent, the disappointment was great, colossal in fact, and nothing but Cleveland's original troupe can heal the wound and pour balm into the lacerated feelings of the lovers of minstrelsy.

For the current week, opening tonight, Joseph Arthur's Still Alarm will be given for four nights only, and a Wednesday matinée. For the past three days a body of carpenters has been at work fitting the stage for the mechanical effects and strengthening the floor of the stage for the ponderous weight it will have to bear. The steam fire engine costing, it is said, $7000, weighs 4890 pounds, and the white horses 1200 pounds each, which, added to the other necessary incumbrances, will make a considerable strain upon the framework of the stage. Every precaution has been used to ensure safety, and as the stage room at the disposal of the management is really greater than that afforded at the California Theater in San Francisco, where the piece has been drawing crowded audiences, it is reasonable to suppose that there will be nothing wanting in the scenic effects. The plot of The Still Alarm deals with the fortunes and misfortunes of a New York fireman, and incidental to the action of the play depicts with scenic effects the work and discipline of fire-station life. While it is not the first time that a fireman has been seen upon the stage or that a conflagration has been made use of for sensation purposes, Mr. Arthur is said to be the first writer who has made a fireman the central figure and hero of a drama. Harry Lacy plays the principal character. This is his first visit here since he played the lead in The Planter's Wife. The firemen of Los Angeles take particular pride, as they well may, in the promptitude with which they answer the call of alarm, and there will no doubt be a critical audience assembled on the first night, more especially as Harry Lacy, the trainer of the horses, claims that his two animals can be hitched up quicker than any pair in the regular service.

After The Still Alarm engagement there will probably be a dearth of attractions until the week of the 24th inst., when Clara Morris and also Hermann's Vaudevilles are booked to appear. One of these attractions will be served at the Operahouse and the other at the Theater, but at present writing the order of choice is not yet decided.

The Park Theater in Boston has enjoyed the reputation of being one of the most respectable in that ancient city of culture, and yet its license was recently revoked under circumstances which point a moral for theatrical managers in other cities.

It appears that the notorious and nasty play, The Clemenceau Case, which provoked such a storm of indignant protest from the press of New York, on account of its indecency, was put upon the road for a tour, and one of the first places visited was the city of Boston. The audience at the first night's performance there was a disgraceful mob, according to reliable accounts. On the second evening the Board of Aldermen, before which complaints had been entered, attended in a body. At a special meeting of the board held the the next day the license of the theater was revoked by unanimous vote, and the performance consequently stopped. This objectionable piece has been refused time by managers who have any regard for the reputation of their houses or the feelings of their best patrons, and on this coast Manger Hayman has set a praiseworthy example in declining it. It has also been refused for similar reasons by the managers of the Grand Operahouse here. The action of the Boston Board of Aldermen will meet the approval of all true friends of the stage. It is the first time in the history of the Boston stage that the license of a respectable theater has been revoked, and although the combination that caused such a scandal has dates booked as far West as San Francisco, some doubt is entertained as to whether it will be able to hold together long enough to reach this coast.

Maude Gregory, a stage-struck St. Louis girl, tried theatrical life for three months and then returned home a sadder and a wiser woman, and thoroughly cured of her dramatic aspirations. Music and Drama indulges in some humorous reflections upon the incident, and also apropos of the average society girl who ventures unprepared upon the stage, and in conclusion pointedly says: "We forgive Miss Gregory for her uncomplimentary conclusions regarding us, individually and collectively, and would ask of J. M. Hill, in whose "Money Mad" company the young lady was forced to these conclusions, why was this thus, and what did he do to prejudice this trusting fawn against the business? She states that the women of the stage are "driven about like cattle!" Ah, yes; this explains Margaret Mather's objections to Mr. Hill. Who'd have thunk it? And who'd have thunk that our fiery, untamed little Mather would have submitted to it so long. Truly, as Miss Gregory says, "the people who go to the the theaters would hardly believe it." After all, though, the young woman has something to be thankful for. She was right in the same company with E. J. Henley and he did not marry her.

The Los Angeles Musical Protective Association has raised its rates for services in the orchestras of first-class theaters about 25 per cent. over present prices. The new schedule is to take effect December 1.

The attempt to make a theatrical star of the little girl Laura Crews does not promise to be crowned with success. The Baldwin Theater was hired for her debut, and an untried drama entitled Spray was put on for the occasion. The first performance was an execrable one, according to account, even the orchestra sharing in the demoralization. The little girl is credited with the possession of a good deal of talent, and would no doubt be benefited by a course of life better adapted to her infant organization than the unnatural mental excitement, late hours and bad air of the theater.

W. T. Carleton had substantial reason for being gratified with his recent operatic season here. His week's receipts were about $6000.

The Stowaway, a melodramatic fraud that travels on the reputation of having two sure-enough, genuine, bold burglars in its company who give a realistic lesson in safe-cracking at each performance, is about to appear again in San Francisco. The manager appears to be able to induce certain papers to indorse his burglars as "real" and as being the genuine "pike Hennessy" and "Kid McCoy," whose names draw the patronage of the roughs and toughs of the large cities. It is a well-known fact to these papers, among others, that the pretended "burglars," to whom large salaries are advertised to be paid in their reformed characters, are a couple of cheap stage hands who have never "done time" for any offense, it is to be hoped. The evil effects of such a line of advertising are none the less to be deplored, and the management deserves to be exposed, as it was in this city, for a contemptible fraud upon the public and also for its outrage upon morality in pandering to the lowest tastes of the vicious classes.

T. W. Keene, the tragedian, is playing the Northern circuit with fair success.

The London Gaiety Company, headed by Nellie Farren and Fred Leslie, will produce during their American engagement a new burlesque on Joan of Arc.

Chicago is a lively theatrical city. Fourteen theaters all crowded, besides any number of attractions in halls, and two new theaters projected make the roster now. Rosina Vokes has been delighting large audiences there. Lawrence Barrett has filled the Operahouse every night, doing the largest business in his two weeks' stay that he ever did in the theater. Emma Abbott has been another leading attraction. Also Francis Wilson, who is now playing in The Merry Monarch. McVicker's Theater is fast being rebuilt and is expected to be ready for Christmas.

Adelaide Moore is booked to appear at the Grand Operahouse here, January 26, for three nights in Romeo and Juliet supported by Joseph Wheelock.

Liberati's Military Band is about to open a short season in San Francisco. It had a very successful four week's engagement in Portland, Or. The band is said to be exceptionally strong in reed instruments. Negotiations are in progress to secure the attraction for this city for a part of the week of 10th instant.

The Owl Dramatic Club has put Emeralda in rehearsal for production at an early date. The piece has only been given here on one occasion and that was prior to the departure of Miss Short for the East. The cast of the present proposed production will be almost entirely new. The proceeds of the entertainment are to be devoted to charitable purposes.

STANLEY'S REAR GUARD

THE EXPLORER ACCUSED OF MALIGNING DEAD MEN.

Jameson's Brother Calls Upon Him to Pursue an Honorable Course—The Adventurer's Mysterious Insinuations.

By Telegraph to The Times.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Jameson's brother writes to the Times asking its assistance in prevailing upon Stanley to pursue an honorable course by publishing the whole of his case against the rear guard, instead of waiting until everything is said from the other side. His present course, the writer says, gives Stanley the advantage of representing a case for dead men to answer. Had they been living Stanley would have been compelled to substantiate his insinuations in a court of law, but now there is no appeal except to the bar of public opinion. The writer adds: "I have had too sad an experience of his consideration for others to risk an appeal to it.

A CRAZY ANARCHIST.

He Kills One Brother, Injures Another and Then Suicides.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] A terrible tragedy occurred at South St. Paul this morning. A young herder named Mickle was driving some cattle belonging to Rogers Bros., well-known live stock men, across land belonging to George Robarge to reach the pasture ground. Robarge came out and assaulted Mickle.

Benjamin Rogers, whose house is but a short distance away, heard of the trouble later and, going over to Robarge's place, asked him to mark the line of his property and prevent future trouble. Robarge assaulted Rogers with an axe but was driven back. William Rogers came to his brother's assistance and Robarge got a shot gun and fired one barrel into William's shoulder, seriously wounding him, and the other into Benjamin Roger's head, killing him instantly. The murderer then reloaded his gun, and going to his barn, blew the top of his head off. Robarge was an anarchist.

THE ORDER OF THE GARTER.

It Is Issued by the Principal of a New York School.

[Washington Star.]

The edict has been issued, and by it the young lady students of the Oswego, (N. Y.,) State Normal School are forbidden to wear garters, or at least the historic style of garter made famous by Edward III of England, who in 1450 created the "Order of the Garter," recognized to this day as the first knightly order of England.

Kings and queens and the titled women of royalty may, if they wish, continue to wear the old style, but Dr. Mary V. Lee will see to it that the young ladies who attend her classes in physical culture in the normal school, wear their hosiery suspended by side elastics attached to an undergarment at the waist or none at all. The explanation made by Dr. Lee to her classes for reform is that the old style, whether worn above or below the knee, hinders a free circulation, prevents development and is injurous to the ladies.

If there is one thing more than another that Dr. Lee takes pride in it is in her classes in physical culture. She first made war upon the corset and tight-lacing, then she gave her attention to the high-heel shoes worn by the young lady students. The first-mentioned garments were supplanted by snug-fitting waists, and now a pupil of the normal can be told by the style of her shoes. The Frenchy high heels have given way to a common sense easy shoe, with heels not more than half an inch high, and they look better and the girls certainly walk better in them.

A gymnasium is located at the normal school. The girls take kindly to the apparatus, though most of them are inclined to be shy of the trapeze. In the gymnasium they wear loose suits of dark material, consisting of a blouse and skirt. They are gradually initiated into the use of the muscle developers to be found there, and it is not an uncommon thing to see one of the girls take a short run, give a light spring, and catching hold of a horizontal bar or trapeze, swing herself backward and forward for a few moments, and then gradually, and with the agility of an acrobat, pull herself up and over the bars or into the rings.

This year is supposed to mark the tercentenary of the invention of the microscope, and there has been some talk of an international exhibition to commemorate the event. The invention is credited to Janson, an optician at Middleburg, Holland.

The lumber cut this year will exceed that of last year by several million feet. The estimate places it at no less than 325,000,000 feet and not more than 350,000,000. The season as a whole has been prosperous, the demand for lumber being good and the price profitable.

SAWDUST SWELLS

The Circus as an Amusement of Fashionable People.

A SENSATIONAL SHOW IN PARIS.

It Began with a "Loud" Feature and Ended with One Still "Louder"—More Objectionable and Less Virile Than the Old Roman Show—The Bonassus.

Old Rome was the real home of the circus—the place where it flourished in its abundant barbarity and magnificence; where all that the turbulent populace demanded was "bread and circuses." Granted these they would guarantee to obstruct in no way the schemes of robbery or ruin set on foot by the Cæsars.

But the circus of Imperial Rome meant more than does the circus of today. It meant combats to the death between fierce animals, between animals and men, and between men themselves. The gladiators, the slaves, the war captives, the Christians—from these were recruited the human prey whose blood was to moisten the sand of the arena. Numidia contributed lions, Africa elephants and India tigers. In the time, say, of Nero Physical Prowess was a greater deity than Jove, and the wreath of victory set on the brow of a bloodstained swordsman brought its wearer greater homage than Seneca ever knew.

The emperor himself condescended to exercise his strength in the arena. He doffed the purple, he twanged the mighty bow, wielded javelin and dagger, slew beast and gladiator in equal fight, and returned to his seat as master of the sports to receive the plaudits and congratulations of the courtiers.

Long years of conquest and cruelty had made Rome sanguinary and indifferent to suffering. Hence the frightful scenes which the nobility of the imperial city applauded at the circus, and in which they often took part.

Customs have changed, however, since then. The circus lives, although the Roman is no more; but it lives not as the Cæsars knew it. A contest between wild beasts would demand the interference of the police; a combat of men, arrests for attempted murder. So trained elephants and bespangled athletes give exhibitions in which some skill is displayed and no one receives injury, and the audience goes home satisfied, but asserting that "it's the same old show" seen the year before.

The aristocratic coteries of Paris, working along different lines but on the same plane with their far off Roman predecessors, decided a few seasons back to get up a circus that should not be the "same old show." The amateurs succeeded, thanks to the training and suggestions of Mr. Molier, in becoming tolerable trapeze performers and bareback riders. It took long months to whip them into shape, however, by the use of safety ropes and dummy horses.

All this accomplished, there was a public exhibition, at which the ring was graced by such fashionable wearers of tights as the Count de la Rochefoucauld, the Baroness van Walberg and Mlle. Denise Davenal. The Cirque Molier is now said to be

BARONESS VAN WALBERG.

"without an equal." It undoubtedly is, if reports of the recent entertainments are to be believed. But two performances were offered, one for the edification of the demi-monde, the other to please the dames du monde. In each instance the exhibition was the same. The entertainment began with a pantomime written specially for the occasion.

"Les Ereintes de la Vie," the title of the pantomime, are the individuals who are "used up" by the "fast life" of Paris, and they are attracted by a comely damsel who personifies a fountain which is a source of health. A group of bankers—who, in Paris especially, know how to combine pleasure with business—run after the "fountain," not merely for her beauty, but in the hope of bringing her out in a Limited Liability company, and they are aided and abetted by a female doctor. It would take too much space to describe the pantomime in full. It is published in a sumptuous form, with suggestive illustrations, and it winds up with the terpsichorean worship of the Golden Calf. The cast comprised Mlle. Rivolta, the Eden danseuse, as the Fountain, Mlle. Dezodor as the Doctoress Beauty, and Mlle. Lavigne as Beauty's Servant.

M. Molier himself opened the scenes in the circus with the usual cock-crow, proving himself an accomplished rider, while a young lady, changing her dress a dozen times, personated the usages of woman's life. Exception might be taken to her representation of Death and of Resurrection as a winged angel, nor was there much fun in the performance of the young lady who, divesting herself of shoes and stockings, takes a foot bath in a gentleman's hat filled with beer.

The long night terminated after sunrise with Ombres-Chinoises, wherein the female form divine, divested of drapery, was reflected en silhouette on a curtain. The poseuses, as they may be called, were not seen in the flesh, and yet they were identified by some of those present, so accurate were the shadows thrown.

Rather a contrast between the fashionable circus of old Rome and the fashionable circus of modern Paris! If the former was bloodthirsty it at least was virile. The latter seems simply to be "loud." The nobility of the Augustan age were bad enough in all conscience, but they didn't give special views of their capers to the half world, and they didn't allow their wives and sisters to do the silhouette business. They would fight a peasant or torture a slave. They were sanguinary, but not effeminate, and they never dreamed of such a show as that put up by the swells of the French capital. Ombres-Chinoises were yet to be.

However, in all ages the circus has created amusement and caused trouble. In the arena at Rome men died; in the arena at Paris morals received a serious wound. Between the two eras—that of Nero and that of Carnot—circus shortcomings affected the fashionable world less and the people more. The traveling show, with its rough canvasmen and rallying cry of "Hey, Rube!" is familiar to every country side.

The escape of animals has caused panic in many a neighborhood which a few hours before had laughed at the pranks of the clown, but probably no more amusing complication has been recorded than that which was brought to the attention of a London "annoyance jury" threescore years ago. It seems that a British predecessor of the noted Barnum had on exhibition a "faked up" beast which he called a "Bonassus," and regarding the showman and his aggregation an indignant citizen wrote as follows to the authorities:

Gentlemen—I Am sorry to trouble you but I Am so Annoyed By next Door Neighbour the Bonassus and with Beasts, that I cannot live in my House—for the stench of the Beast is So Great And their is only A Slight petition Betwixt the houses and the Beast are continually Breaking through in to my Different Rooms And I am always loosing my lodgers in Consequence of the Beast first A Monkey made its way in My Bedroom next the Jackall come in to the Yard and this last week the people in My Second floor have been Alarmed in the Dead of the Night By Monkey Breaking through into the Closet and are Going to leave in Consequence this being the third lodgers I have lost on account of the Beast And I have been letting my Second Floor at Half the Rent—and those men of Mr. James are Bawling the Whole Day Against My Window—And continually taking peoples attention from M' Window—And I am quite pestered with Rats and I Am Confident they came from the Exebition—And in Short the Ingury and Nuisance is So Great as almost Impossible to Describe But to be so Annoyd By such an Imposter I think is Very Hard—Gentlemen your Early inquiry will oblige your Servant—T. W. ——.

N. B.—And if I mention anything to Mr. James He ondly Abuses me with the most Uncouth Language.

Not long ago the swell young men of New York city gave an exclusive and fashionable circus entertainment, but to their credit be it said they did not number in the list of attractions offered female performers, silhouette indecencies or even a Bonassus.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The Great Parade at Milwaukee—Other Interesting Items.

Fifteen thousand Knights were in the line of march at Milwaukee. There were thirty-four bands in the parade, twenty drum corps and a whole army of fifers. It took nearly two hours for the procession to pass the reviewing stand, and the men marched with military precision, and with the regular army swing at that. A careful count showed that there were nearly 15,000 men in line. The parade was witnessed by over 50,000 strangers and citizens, who thronged the line of march. The militia dress parade was a success.

Four thousand members have been enrolled in Ohio since last May.

There have been seventeen new lodges instituted in Ohio since October, 1888.

R. E. lodge, of Vicksburg, Miss., has a membership of 204, and is worth $2,816.48.

Nearly all the lodges in Louisiana have raised the fee for the three ranks to $20.

In West Virginia the order has gained twelve lodges and 564 members during the year.

Since the organization of the supreme lodge, in 1868, the subordinate lodges have paid $65,000.

The lodges of Indianapolis have an aggregate membership of nearly 2,600, and the lodges have all the work they can do.

The membership of the order in the grand jurisdiction of West Virginia is 2,134, with forty lodges.

The knights of Camden, Ark., are to have a $12,000 castle hall.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Two Interesting Supreme Lodge Decisions—The July Assessment.

Among the decisions approved by the supreme lodge at its late session is the following: "A lodge having information, after an applicant has been balloted for and elected, that the statements in his application are false should investigate, and if the information is found to be correct objections to initiation should be made and a new ballot ordered, and in this way the lodge should reject the applicant."

Decision No. 40 reads: "A benefit certificate is payable $1,700 to A. B. and $300 to C. D. If A. B. dies before the decease of the member, C. D. will be entitled to the entire benefit if the member shall not have procured another benefit certificate, designating other beneficiaries, in accordance with section 4, article 9, supreme lodge constitution."

The triple assessment called for July yielded $413,040.07, with fourteen lodges still to hear from. The only New England lodge delinquent was 2,450, of New Hampshire. The triple call last December produced $412,883.49. On the June call, which was for a double assessment, twenty-two lodges had been suspended and subsequently reinstated, but it is worthy of notice that three of the same lodges delinquent on the June call appear in the list as suspended for failure to remit within the constitutional limit on the call for July, viz., one in North Carolina, one in Texas and one in Tennessee.

RED RUBE'S END.

It Was of Course by Means of Violence.

AN EARLY MORNING COMBAT.

The Taking Off of an Outlaw Who Has an Unequaled Record as a Train Robber and All 'Round Scoundrel—Some of His Crimes.

The world at large, and the state of Alabama in particular, have reason to rejoice, for "Red Rube" Burrow is dead.

Modern times have known no more brutal and abandoned ruffian than this outlaw who fell before the pistol of a citizen at Linden, Ala., early one morning recently. If any regret is to be felt regarding his end it is that he died by the bullet instead of by the rope. He had shot unoffending men down in cold blood, he had robbed a dozen trains, and for years he had defied the authorities and terrorized the communites which he scourged with his presence.

RED RUBE BURROW.

"Red Rube," as the sanguinary scoundrel was appropriately called, first saw the light in Lamar county, Ala., thirty-three years ago. His father, Allen Burrow, who still lives, was engaged in farming and the manufacture of moonshine whisky. Rube proved a bright example of the truth of Pope's lines:

A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not of the Pierian spring.

He acquired at a country school enough education to enable him to read dime novels and the pernicious books which detailed the doings and glorified the careers of such men as the James and Younger brothers.

Fired by the example of the Missouri bandits Rube, at the age of 15, put a mask on his face and waylaid and robbed a neighbor who was returning home from market. The victim recognized the lad, and complained to his father next day. Old man Burrow restored the stolen money, and gave his precocious offspring a sound whipping. The punishment evidently fitted the crime, for Rube mended his ways and was a comparatively decent citizen until 1886. Then he and his brother Jim joined a band of thieves operating in northern Texas and Arkansas. An estimate may be formed of the character of the gang when it is stated that the first job in which Rube and Jim took a hand was the robbing of a decrepit Cherokee woman who lived in Indian territory.

Having "won their spurs" by this exploit the brothers and their pals began the work of "holding up trains." On three successive occasions they despoiled the express and mail cars of the Texas Pacific road and got away with large booty. Then they tackled a St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas train at Genoa, Ark., with meager results. By this time the pursuit had become hot and organized. A fellow named Brock was captured and promptly betrayed the Burrow brothers, whose identity had not before been established. The fugitives were "rounded up" at Montgomery, Ala. On the way to jail they broke and ran. Jim was shot down, but Rube escaped after killing a man. The former died in prison later on.

This ended the now noted outlaw's connection with large bands of desperadoes. He would none of them. Instead he took to himself one trusty companion of his own kidney, by name Joe Jackson, and thenceforward these two made railway travel in the southwest a rather dangerous matter. Their first robbery together was of an Illinois Central train at Duck Hill, Miss. They killed one man and got away with $18,000. Soon after they took $11,000 from a Mobile and Ohio train near Buguntunna, Ala. By this time the country was swarming with detectives, troops and civil officers. "Red Rube," however, added to his crimes by slaying in the most cowardly manner Mose Graves, the postmaster at Jewel, Miss.

At Sand Mountain he and Jackson fought a posse of over a hundred men, killed several and escaped. Some weeks ago Jackson was captured. Then Burrow "went it alone." His last exploit was to rob a train on the Louisville and Nashville road at Flomaton, Ala., single handed. He is said to have secured $29,000.

But a reward was on his head in three states, and the Southern Express company was willing to pay $7,500 for him, dead or alive. Therefore hundreds were hunting him. Near Linden, Ala., J. C. Carter, a storekeeper, and John McDuffy, a farmer, aided by two negroes, made him a prisoner. They took him to the village, lodged him in jail and manacled him.

McDuffy and one of the colored men acted as guard for the night. Carter, who had secured the outlaw's money, went to a hotel. At 4 in the morning Burrow asked for something to eat, and said there were crackers in his satchel. The satchel was placed by his side. He drew from it two revolvers and leveled them at his guards. He compelled the negro to take off his handcuffs and put them on McDuffy and then to guide him to Carter's quarters.

He demanded his money of Carter. Then the two men fired at almost the same instant. Both balls found their marks, but the combatants fought their way out to the street and continued to exchange shots till Burrow fell a corpse. Carter, although badly wounded, will recover. Burrow leaves a son 14 years old, who is eager to take up the profession of his father.

During the last three years the dead outlaw robbed about a dozen trains, killed at least four men and wounded over a score. He generally wore a mustache, but in the last two months of his life he was so hunted that shaving was out of the question and a short beard covered his face.

Killing the Maori Women.

Hitherto we have been told that the vices introduced by white men are depopulating the South Sea islands, but now it appears that white women are responsible for the rapid depopulation of New Zealand. When female missionaries went among the Maoris they insisted that the Maori women should wear clothing. The latter could not be induced to overcome their prejudice against skirts, but discovering that the missionary women wore corsets they decided that the latter was a garment not wholly devoid of merit.

The result is that every Maori woman now goes about her daily work neatly clad in a corset laced as tightly as the united efforts of half a dozen stalwart warriors can lace it. Being unaccustomed to tight lacing the women are dying off with great rapidity, and the enemies of female missionaries now regret that they ever asked their dusky sisters to consider the question of clothing.—Paris Herald.

A Fair Caleken Fancier.

A society sister of the quill is Miss Bessie Marbury, who when in town lives with her father at No. 76 Irving place, and when out of town either at their country house at Oyster Bay or at Lenox.

At Oyster Bay Miss Marbury raises her quills by means of an incubator and a fowl run. In New York she wields them, pockets the resulting cash and spends it in Lenox. On any question of chicken raising when Miss Marbury is about the farmers of Oyster Bay and neighborhood are not "in it." This charming young woman has written some of the cleverest skits on society that have been produced in recent years.—New York Journal.

TAXPAYERS, ATTENTION.

A Circular That Is Being Distributed Throughout the County.

The following circular is being sent to taxpayers throughout the county. As will be seen, the signers are among the largest property-holders on the assessment rolls, part of whom are Republicans and part Democrats:

TAXPAYERS, ATTENTION.

It is hardly necessary to inform you that the action of the State Board of Equalization, in the readjustment of the assessment of each county, is one of the most important questions before us. The State board raises or reduces a county as a whole, so that its action affects the rich and poor alike. In the selection of a representative politics should not be considered. We must, irrespective of party, vote for a man who is familiar with the values of property in this section of the country, and who has the ability and honesty to advocate his convictions as a member of that board. We have closely followed the course pursued by the present incumbent, Hon. John T. Gaffey of Los Angeles, a resident of this district for twenty-seven years, and we are desirous of having you cooperate with us in assisting to have him returned as a member of the board from this district.

The State of California is divided into four equalization districts three of them being north of San Francisco. The South District containing twenty counties, is the one we are particularly interested in, as it comprises all of the territory of Southern California and over half of the territory of the State. The realty lying in this end of the State has an intrinsic and speculative value upon which taxation cuts a very material figure. It has a value which is quite misunderstood in the northern part of the State, and it is impossible for a man from the northern part of this district to correctly compare its value with that of lands lying in the other equalization districts, where values are more settled. In proof of this we cite the following fact: The Fourth District was represented from the year 1882 to 1886 by John Markley of Monterey. During his incumbency forty counties in this State were raised by the State Board and one-half of those counties were in this district. The following data speaks for itself, as showing how the State Board equalized Southern California when we had no representative on the Board:

Los Angeles raised 20 per cent in 1883.
Los Angeles raised 20 per cent in 1884.
Los Angeles raised 20 per cent in 1885.

Mr. Gaffey represented this district on the board from 1887 to 1890 and by his efforts the following reductions were obtained:

In 1887, Los Angeles, 10 per cent.
In 1888, Los Angeles, 10 per cent.
In 1889, Los Angeles, 10 per cent.

In 1890, This year the County Assessor of Los Angeles reduced his roll $15,000,000 from that of 1889, so that no proposition of further reduction would be entertained by the State Board. The three reductions obtained by Mr Gaffey saved the taxpayers of this county $36,000, or in other words, every taxpayer in this county paid 30 per cent. less to the State than he would have done had not Mr. Gaffey secured the reductions of 1887, 1888 and 1889.

Comment on the following resolution is unnecessary:

RESOLUTION.

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county, held September 25, 1889, the following resolution was adopted.

WHEREAS, it is the sense of this board that the thanks of the people of this county are due to the Hon. J. T. Gaffey, member of the State Board of Equalization, for his earnest and effective assistance rendered this board in obtaining the reduction of the assessed value of the property in this county for 1888 and 1889.

WHEREAS, we desire to express our confidence in Mr Gaffey as a State officer, and to give our testimony to the impartial manner in which he has represented the interests of his district before the State Board, now, therefore be it

Resolved, that this board hereby extends the thanks of the people of this county to Mr. Gaffey for his efforts in behalf of Los Angeles county.

Resolved, that the board also extends its personal thanks to Mr Gaffey for the many courtesies extended to them by him in their work at the State Capitol at Sacramento, before the State Board of Equalization.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Board of Supervisors and a copy of the same, signed by the members of the Board of Supervisors, be presented to Mr Gaffey.

W. T. MARTIN,

A. E DAVIS,
T. E. ROWAN,
Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County.

The gentleman selected as the opponent of Mr Gaffey is a resident of the county of Monterey, a county in the extreme northern end of the district. In closing we would impress upon your mind the absolute necessity of selecting a representative from this section of the district, as, if Mr. Gaffey is not elected, the thirteen southern counties will have no representative on the State Board of Equalization, and the whole board will be constituted of men from within seventy-five miles of the city of San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA GRAPES.

This Season's Crop in Excess of Any Previous Year.

[Market Review.]

The California grape crop this season, as will be noticed by the report in the Market Review for this week, exceeds that of any previous year. It is not many years back since the grape-grower turned his attention to California, as specially suited in soil and climate to become a grape-growing country, which in time would equal if not excel the vine-clad hills of the old country. A few years ago a Californian, who became wealthy in grape-growing, related this instance in his experience.

Having acquired a large territory on the Pacific slope, and established quite extensive vineyards, he deemed it a profitable venture to import some European grape-growers, and went abroad for the purpose of collecting together the best he could find and induce to come over. He was so far successful as to take back with him several with their families, to whom he offered not only yearly wages, but the privilege of selecting for themselves a certain amount of land for grape cultivation. When they arrived they were greatly pleased with the country and its glorious climate, and entered at once upon their duties.

In course of time, after they had become acquainted with the country, they asked of their employer the privilege of selecting the land they were to cultivate for themselves. This was readily acceded, and he was greatly astonished to find that instead of the portion of his land which he had set apart as the best for vineyards, they selected the hilly, stubble-grown and stony ground.

They taught him a lesson though. What he had rejected as barren for the purpose of grape-growing, they demonstrated to be the choicest, beside which the land he had chosen was poor indeed. Such was his success in general, however, that some two or three years ago, provided with testimonials from those whom he first brought over, he was enabled to go again to the old country and bring back to his vineyards a very respectable colony of grape-growers. The above was related by him to a fellow-traveler while going "down the Rhine" on his last visit. Recent reports from him confirm his judgment formed early in the grape-growing history of California. He is today one of the principal vineyard owners of the world.

The potato market can record one instance of the influence of the McKinley Tariff Bill. A car-load of potatoes was received early in the week and sold "on the street" at a loss of 2 cents a bushel. The price paid for the lot was 40 cents a bushel in Canada; to this must be added 12 cents a bushel for freight charges, and 25 cents a bushel duty exacted by the provisions of the McKinley Bill, making 77 cents a bushel, cost. The potatoes sold for 75 cents a bushel. This rather lets out the Canadian shippers.

There is no comfort, night or day,
When teeth are suffering from decay.
And oh! the pain that we shall feel,
When bitter hours at last reveal
That all our woe came grim and gaunt
From our neglect of SOZODONT.

To the Public

Having heard that a statement is in circulation to the effect that I am not running for the office of Coroner in the expectation of being elected and that if I should be elected I do not intend to perform the duties of the office for the term for which I am elected, I wish to say to the public generally that I am in the race to win by all fair means, and that I hereby pledge myself if elected to attend in person to the duties of the office during the term for which I am elected. The statements to the contrary are a weak device of the enemy which will, I am sure, have no effect

Steady Progress

Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever since it was placed before the public. Wherever introduced, its sales have grown from year to year, until now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any druggist will confirm this statement. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.

"Since Hood's Sarsaparilla has been in my hands for sale I have had frequent and unreserved testimonials in its favor. Although carrying this preparation for less than one year, my sales have been greater than of any similar preparation, and the testimonials in its favor are at once positive and personally noticeable." A. WRIGHT, Healdsburg, Cal.

Sells On Its Merits.

"My boys say, 'Papa, why don't you buy more of Hood's Sarsaparilla at a time; we are always short.' It sells on its own merits." F. BEAL, Portland, Oregon; the oldest druggist in Oregon.

CLOSING THE CAMPAIGN

A Final Reception to Col. Markham at His Home.

TOMORROW THE DECISIVE DAY.

An Independent's Reasons for Voting the Republican Ticket—Democratic Candidates Repudiate Bills.

Tomorrow will be election day, when every Republican is expected to turn out and do his full duty. The polls will open at sunrise and close at 5 o'clock. The law is as follows:

The polls must be opened at sunrise of the morning of the day of election, and must be kept open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, when the polls shall be closed. [Pol. Code, § 1160, as amended March 20, 1889.

The Markham Reception.

Tonight the campaign in this county will close with a grand reception to Col. Markham at his home in Pasadena. Republicans from all over the county will be present, and the indications are that the demonstration will be the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in the Crown of the Valley. A large delegation will go out from this city.

He Will Vote For Markham.

"Yes, I shall vote for Markham," remarked A. S. McDonald, in talking to a TIMES reporter yesterday. "I am in no sense a partisan, and call myself an independent, but I shall vote for Markham because I believe he is honest, conscientious and capable, an estimate that I formed of him from a little incident that occurred when he was in Congress. In my employ at that time was a man named Benjamin David, an old soldier, who was a sufferer from a chronic disease. An agent had written him about applying for a pension, and he had filed the necessary papers. The matter dragged along for months, and nothing came of it. In the meantime David was constantly getting worse, and finally had to quit work. As he had a family on his hands, I saw that something had to be done at once if anything was to be accomplished. I had a speaking acquaintance with Col. Markham, who was in Congress at the the time, and I wrote to him, giving him the facts in the case. The letter was promptly answered, and, although David did not live to get his pension, as he died about two weeks after my first letter was sent, Col. Markham took up the case, carried it through, and in six weeks the widow and children of the dead man were provided for. That is one reason why I shall vote for Markham. My relations with him were not such that I had any reason to expect special consideration, but from the prompt manner in which the case was attended to, I formed the opinion that Mr. Markham was not only a good man, but a conscientious congressman, and for this reason I shall support him for Governor."

Repudiating Their Bills.

The Democratic candidates on the county ticket have taken advantage of the opportunity to curtail their campaign expenses by refusing to pay their printing bills. This comes hard on two hard-working young men who took the word of the candidates and advanced the ready money for card printing, and who now realize that the word of the average Democratic candidate is of no value when it comes to paying an honest debt. A multiplicity of suits in the Justices' courts will result.

Notes and Comment From All Over the State.

[Oakland Enquirer.]

Faith without reason seems to be the principle now governing the Democratic journals and Democratic speakers of the State. In every issue and from every stump is made the boast of victory, yet not one valid reason for such an expectation is vouchsafed. It matters not whether the subject of discussion be the election of the Governor in a State naturally Republican, or of a Congressman or member of the Legislature in a district overwhelmingly Republican, the vain boast of victory is made with an easy assurance that would be irritating were it not so amusingly absurd. Even when cornered individually, the leaders of Democracy will evade an explanation of the reason for their pretended faith. Ask a San Franciscan where Pond's supporters are to be found in winning numbers, and he will refer you grandiloquently to the people of the interior. Put the same question to a rural Democrat, and he points right back to San Francisco. Ask about Del Valle's chances and you are told that he is regarded as the favorite son of the South—a sort of demi-god, as it were—yet in his southern home he was politically slaughtered when he ran for Congress; and that, too, by Markham, the man whose influence he is now expected by his foolish admirers to be able to offset. In like manner consider the chances of each individual member of the Democratic State ticket, and you will find it is composed almost exclusively of lame ducks. Then take a look at the Congressional field. In San Francisco, the home of Democracy, the standing candidate of the Fourth District, Robert Ferral, has run times that almost out-number the fingers on his hands, only to be defeated with a monotonous regularity that would be discouraging to anybody but Ferral himself. Even in the Third Congress District, where a Democrat can't help feeling lonesome, the self-sacrificing gentleman who is carrying the Democratic banner is said to have dreams in his sleep of being in Congress talking saucily to Tom Reed. However, as the election is so near at hand, it seems hardly worth while to dispel until then these delusions which are harmful only to the unfortunates who entertain them.

Gen. Eli H. Murray in San Francisco.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

The Republican meeting at the Wigwam last night was fully attended. After a song by Daisy May Cressy ex-Governor Eli H. Murray of Utah was introduced. He was received with a storm of applause, a voice breaking out through it all crying, "Get thar, Eli."

Mr. Murray said that he was not present as a politician or an office-seeker, but as a friend of the people, bringing greetings from his friends in the southern part of the State and assurances of their determination to aid in the great approaching battle.

"I believe," said Gov. Murray, "that the best interests of this country are served by the Republican party, which I believe is the handmaiden of liberty. The party represents the Union, the Constitution and the enforcement of the law, and every free-born American should be glad and honored to stand upon such a platform. The ballot represents the individual liberty of mankind and makes the sovereignty of the people through their representatives. No man has a right not to vote. Business men and professional men should bear this fact in mind. No man has a right to criticize the successful party unless he helps to make it or defeat it. I know the Democratic party perhaps better than any one else, and I do not hesitate to say that this country's interest is safest in the hands of the Republican party. It is instanced by the men it has produced—Lincoln, Sherman, Grant, Logan and Blaine. I have never lived in a country where the Democratic party was not in the ascendency, but I am here in California now, and Uncle Sam has whispered in my ear that I am for the first time to be with the majority. This is a Republican year and we are going to win. I came from the southern part of this State, fellow-citizens, to say to you that we down there have come to the conclusion that Col. Markham ought to be the next Governor of this State on his merits as a man, and he's going to be, too."

Speaking of the Democratic party, which he characterized as opposed to all progress, Murray said: "What is the Democratic party? It is composed of a solid South, the slums of New York and Wall-street brokers. Throw those factors aside and you will have no Democratic party."

Mr. Murray then paid a handsome compliment to McKinley and the wise effects and influence of his tariff bill. He closed with an appeal to Republicans to send down to San Diego on next Tuesday the news that San Francisco had really gone Republican.

Markham at San Diego.

[San Diego Dispatch to S. F. Call.]

"We will send Markham over Tehachapi Mountains with 7000 majority," said W. W. Bowers tonight, and if the receptions given the former during the last two days are to be taken as indicating the feeling in this section, the prediction will be more than verified. It has been a triumphal tour indeed, and ovation has followed ovation until all Southern California is fairly ablaze with Republican enthusiasm. From every village and hamlet, from every farm and workshop the people have poured forth to do honor to the future Governor, and even Democrats have joined in the royal welcome to the man whom the entire State has learned to love and honor as no candidate for Governor has ever been. His manly bearing and gentlemanly methods of campaigning have been so strikingly in contrast with those of the opposition that hundreds who otherwise would have voted against him have flocked to his standard and placed themselves in line with his warmest friends.

The lying attacks which have been made upon him by the Democratic press and Buckley tools who are conducting the campaign have had their legitimate effect and have added to his strength day after day, until he is actually invincible in this section. This feature of the campaign was strongly emphasized today when one of the most prominent Democrats in this county, who has never before deserted his party, called on the colonel and assured him of his hearty support, saying he was disgusted with the mode of attack which had been made by Buckley's henchmen.

Col. Markham, with his wife and party, left San Bernardino at 9:30 o'clock this morning over the Santa Fé road, and at every station en route crowds had assembled at the depots to catch a glimpse of the future Governor and cheer him as he passed. It was a continued ovation during the entire trip, and when the party reached this city hundreds were in waiting to escort the colonel to the Brewster Hotel, where it had been arranged that he would hold a reception.

How Much Money.

[San Francisco Call.]

A contemporary says Buckley has made a million dollars by manipulating the politics of San Francisco and California. We do not know how true this may be, but probably he made one or two hundred thousand dollars out of the last session of the Legislature. We presume the public generally realize that Buckley made himself rich by plundering our citizens. One would naturally suppose he would be willing to forego his plundering schemes, but no, he now desires to place himself high among our millionaires. Permit him to say who shall fill all of the important offices in the State, such as Mayor, Governor, judges, etc., and is it not likely he will gain more wealth? Is it not surprising that a single well-meaning man can be found who will vote to support Buckley and his candidates?

BRITISH CAPITALISTS SWINDLED.

American "Financiers" Secure Over a Million of Their Money.

Mrs. Cornelia V. E. Miller and Mrs. Priscilla Field, two aristocratic looking women of middle age, were arrested the other day by members of Inspector Byrnes' detective staff at a swell hotel in New York city. They were charged with receiving stolen money and being fugitives from English justice. Judge Barrett, before whom they were brought on a writ of habeas corpus, set them at liberty, but Mrs. Miller was re-arrested immediately by a United States marshal.

MRS. MILLER—MRS. FIELD.

It seems that the husbands of the women, J. H. Field and W. W. Miller, went to London from Chicago some time ago and started a banking enterprise, subscribers to which were promised large profits and quick returns. Guileless British capitalists invested heavily. Not long ago Messrs. Field and Miller sought refuge on the continent, and their wives paid a visit to New York. The women began drawing against their London bank account, and had secured $95,000 before the exposure occurred. Then the English dupes put in a claim to the rest of their deposit and secured the women's arrest.

This is the first time that Field's name has been connected publicly with a fraudulent enterprise. In Chicago he flourished as an advertising agent and newspaper writer. A former employer says that he was thoroughly honest, but "sharper than chain lightning. He could pick up an acquaintance with a wildcat in ten minutes and be on friendly terms with the creature in ten more." Miller came into prominence some years ago as one of the principals in as big a swindle as was ever perpetrated—the notorious Fund W. scheme, which had its headquarters at Chicago and its victims throughout North and South America. When the crash came Miller turned state's evidence and got off with a fine of $1,000, while his partners, Fleming and Loring, went to prison. Miller made $100,000 out of Fund W., and the current report—probably exaggerated—is that he and Field have "skinned" the Britishers to the tune of $1,500,000.

MARKHAM.

A Review of His Most Surprising Campaign.

A GRAND POLITICAL ROUND-UP.

From Los Angeles to Sacramento and From San Francisco About the State to the Close of the Great Canvass.

LOS ANGELES, 1 o'clock a. m., Nov. 3, 1890.—[Staff Correspondence of THE TIMES.] It has been my fortune to have been in some degree in the Markham fight for several months. As long ago as April last, when the verses of "The Markham Rose" were printed over my initials, I predicted the colonel's nomination—those lines in fact were such a prediction, and events have borne out everything then said, or since said, by his friends, of the Republican candidate for Governor.

It was by a coincidence that I went North on the same train with Col. Markham ten days before the time set for the meeting of the convention at Sacramento. We reached the Palace Hotel on Sunday, and when Monday came it was found that the opposition to the man from the South was crystalizing. It was blue Monday sure enough for the friends of the gallant soldier, who were on the ground that memorable day. The Chronicle had come out strongly against him in Saturday's and Sunday's issues, and the tide seemed setting with a strong current against the tall colonel.

But no grass was allowed to grow under the feet of his adherents, though few of them were on the ground. The battle for his nomination was begun and nearly fought to a finish under the roof of Mr. Sharon's big inn. The current was stemmed there at least so that by the time August 11 had shown its figures upon the calendar and the hour of the convention was at hand, he had an even show in the race.

Then there came from the South those gallant gentlemen—the Markham Guard—with his portrait and his name worn proudly on their breasts; and with his name only to conjure with.

The brilliant fight they made for him and the magnificent manner in which they won it, has been told by more deft pencils than mine. In addition the South made a political name for itself which shines with lustre everywhere in California, and the sections beyond the big range never tire of telling how the "one-lungers" with "two lobes to their brains" went into the twenty-four foot ring and "did up" every comer, hands down.

But a nomination is not an election, as is well known—at least to others than the tyro in politics. That the success of Pasadena's colonel at Sacramento was illy received in the regions except those immediately about us, there is no question. Dire disaster was predicted on all sides, but the friends of the winner knew the stuff he was made of.

He grew.

He continued to grow.

The Democracy under the domination, as usual, of the blind man with a whip, nominated a man whom George Knight calls a "negative proposition." The world has no use for that kind of men, and Pond was strongest the day and hour of his nomination.

He waned.

He continued to wane.

Markham went into the metropolis—into the very dooryard of his opponent and began his campaign.

The Examiner undertook to belittle him. It talked about his "magnetic hand," and thereby gave him the best advertisement a candidate for political preferment ever had.

The "hypnotic fist," (by the way an expression I was the first to print) became actually a fad. People thought there was something in it, other than the fact that an honest man held it out to be grasped by his fellows, and they began to flock to his meeting places.

Every day saw the tide setting stronger and steadier his way.

He grew every day—every hour. He had held a number of meetings in San Francisco and six in other places—Oakland, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Napa, Vallejo and Antioch—besides several day meetings, when I joined his train at Woodland on the 27th of September.

There I saw that Markham was fulfilling my predictions and was growing. There was a "coming our way" that no adroit observer could mistake, and while the meeting was an enthusiastic one, as I look back at it now I see what a mild and gentle gathering it was in comparison with the great ones that later on rent the heavens with cheers for the next Governor of California.

The march of triumph went on. At Colusa, the Democratic stronghold, people braved a rain-storm to crowd the town's theater to suffocation, and when next day callers came to his rooms many were found to be conspicuous Democrats who gave him their allegiance.

At Willows his train was halted and the town emptied its houses to receive him.

Shasta county convened at Redding and greeted him until it seemed as though their cheers might be heard echoing against the great white mountain that rears itself a monument of God against God's sky of blue.

Red Bluff, touched with the fire of enthusiasm, set every street ablaze with illuminations and turned night into day with sky-reaching bonfires.

Chico, Oroville and Marysville fell into line and vied with each other in a wealth of welcome to the choice of a bossless convention.

Then came the great and brilliant ovation at Sacramento—when the lights from a thousand torches painted fantastic pictures upon the big, white capitol and the smoke from them seemed as though ascending from a river of fire.

Downieville, in the fastness of the great Sierran range, was the next place to come out with its populace and welcome the swarthy Southron. Here the first giant cartridge was heard saluting him, a sound that soon became as familiar as the ding-dong of the bells upon the locomotives which dragged us across the country. Then picturesque Nevada City took up the glad acclaim and reddened every hill about it with the blazing of its patriotic fires. Grass Valley, its near neighbor, greeted the next Governor with a throng of men of brawn that darkened every narrow street in it, and Auburn, "loveliest city of the"—foothills had to make a meeting place out of doors or let half those who wished to, go home without a sight of the man of magnetic fame.

It was the same story in all the mining region. At Placerville, at Plymouth, at Amador, at Sutter Creek, and at Jackson. Everywhere along the rugged mountain ways the miners roared out their giant powder salute of welcome until the very air pulsated with sound.

Then came the long hard ride through Calaveras county, where was found a people aflame with enthusiasm and concocting new schemes with which to imprint the memory of the candidate who came among them. Little maiden highwaymen (?) were sent out to pelt him with red roses—then take him captive and turn him over to the citizens of Mokelumne Hill.

Yet grand and brilliant as has been his tour through all the regions I have named, it was left for the capital of San Joaquin county—Stockton—to break the record up to that date. How she glutted the streets with torches and the great Hunter Square with people, I told you along the swinging wires, in a brief dispatch, in which it was impossible to do justice to the occasion.

The same conditions followed at San Francisco, when the big metropolis, gathering itself together, took on momentum from the start already gained and sent the gallant colonel through its streets with a whoop, hurrah, sputter, bang and blare of brass, that fairly rattled the cobble stones for blocks around.

Then followed the trip upon the briny, in a ship garnished and aflutter with color, to the pretty city that lies beyond Humboldt Bar—Eureka, where the people came out with roar of cannon, the smiles of beauty, and the music of brass to welcome to the redwood regions the stalwart soldier from the southern sunland.

Ferndale followed, bringing the residents from miles away to cry "hail to the chief," among the hundreds being a man who had been a pupil of the colonel's when a school-teacher, years and years ago, beyond the Rockies.

Next Watsonville greeted him with her wealth of roses and the hospitality of her people. San José flooded the streets with life to welcome him, and packed a great, gaunt auditorium until the atmosphere was like a breath of fever.

And then the big Republican tidal wave began rolling down through the great rich valley of the San Joaquin—the story of its motion there having been so recent that I will not tire you with a review of it.

But it was like a conqueror returning from a conquest of nations that Col. Markham was received at Modesto, Merced, Fresno, Visalia, Tulare and Bakersfield, and then the tour below the big divide began. Ventura, San Bernardino, San Diego, Orange, Santa Ana, Anaheim and the Soldiers' Home, culminating in the demonstration of Saturday night, which has had no equal before in any city outside the big metropolis on the bay.

I have briefly reviewed this trip of triumph to show how from coldness, apathy and indifference the North had changed to an absolute affection for the man sent among its people as the color-bearer of the Republican party of California.

"Why Col. Markham will be elected?" Because he has the hearts of the people with him, because the party is united from Del Norte to the Mexican line, because the Republican press of the State has not a break in its ranks, and because the party of Buckley has lost heart and hope. It sees the handwriting on the wall as plainly as Belshazzar saw it, and though its high priest, boss and harlot of politics is blind, there is at his elbow a faithful servant to whisper in his ear "mene, mene, tekel upharsin."

Predicting the result of popular elections is risky business, especially when the day and the hour is so close at hand that a fellow is likely to be laughed at if he is a poor guesser, but it is safe to say that Markham will be elected by from 8000 to 15,000 majority.

I cannot close this last screed of mine on the topic of politics without saying a word of the brilliant gentlemen who have spoken from the same rostrum with the colonel during the campaign.

Harry Morehouse, the little man with the voice of velvet and steel, who paints pictures with sentences until they loom up before you as though upon great sitianesque canvases.

The ideal campaigner, George Knight, whose brains make him the peer of any orator in the West and whose voice, rich, round and full, reaches the distance like a blast from an Alpine horn. How he can rouse an audience to enthusiasm or make it melt into tears you have recently had an opportunity to know.

Joe Campbell, the sledge-hammer stump-speaker from the wilds of the Wabash—Indiana, who makes speeches as a blacksmith makes horseshoes, as though he meant business, and strictly business at that.

They are a great trio, and their share in winning the fight for Markham it is hard to compute, but they have "been there" all the time.

Yet great as they are, they are better fellows, every one of them, than they are orators, disagreeable as it may be for them to hear it. They have beguiled us with song and story—from the doxology to "That is love," and from the crucifixion to the very latest mot from the clubs of the metropolis. With perennial wit and a Tapleyan good humor they have made the arduous days and nights "one continual round of pleasure." "God bless them, everyone"!

Of the press gang that followed the eagle in his flight I shall say but little; they have pencil, paper, "orgins," and can say it for themselves.

The campaign is won and this group of campaigners dissolves into the ocean of the future, whose waves lap invisible shores, bearing us—who knows where?

HANK WAGONER.

CHINESE TWINS.

One Is an American and the Other a Celestial.

[Chicago Herald.]

Bert Lee, an educated Chinaman, who is in charge of the electric light plant of Sewickley, a town near Pittsburgh, is the happiest celestial this side of the Rocky mountains. The cause of his joy is a pair of boys that arrived here about two weeks ago. One of them has all the features of a Mongolian, while the other looks like a full-blooded Caucasian. The mother, Mrs. Lee, who was Ida Newman of Providence, R. I., is, of course, proud of her offspring. When seen at her home on Duquesne Heights, she said she felt a slight disappointment because both did not possess the Mongolian features. Bert, the one that looks like its father, will go to China as a medical missionary if he lives to reach an age sufficient for his destiny as at present mapped out. Alexander, the other one, will probably be left at home, unless he develops a desire to accompany Bert. Alex is a lively little fellow, and has light hair, blue eyes and fair complexion, while Bert has coal-black hair, almond eyes and genuine Chinese features. Mrs. Lee first met her husband at Providence, R. I., where she was teaching a Chinese mission school. He was one of her pupils, and she fell in love with him and marriage was the result. The couple have only been living in this city for a short time. The mother is kept busy showing the babies to the curious people who visit the house daily.

MY LADDIE! NO.

Was it up or down our boat shot out?
You who are caramen maybe know;
There seemed no need that I should heed
Aught save to watch my laddie row.
The floating tresses of the trees
Bent low to kiss the river's edge;
A pipe of bird, whose nest was stirred,
Rose sleepily from out the sedge.

The swift turns of the curving course,
The tranquil nook where lilies slept;
A human flute, now sharp, now hoarse,
As low beneath the bank we crept.
The wet tips of the tiller ropes
Dripped silver in that magic air;
The river's edge, like giant hedge,
Grew dense with shadows black and bare.

A sudden flash of gleaming lamps,
Where sweet, shrill laughter pierced the night;
A glint and glow on us below,
Then—stillness, and the rare moonlight.
A tawny head in crimson cap,
Eyes, honest eyes, most darkly blue;
Bare arms of snow that come and go
Athwart a statue's rosy hue.

O moon! what strange dementia breeds?
What stirs this quiet pulse of mine?
What vision sweet and incomplete
Illumes the world with light divine?
No answer! But the moon shines on,
Smiling, mayhaps, with gentle glee.
Why should I wish with her to kiss
The rower, who is not for me?

Some day the statue will arouse,
The marble arms with warmth will glow;
Then in his boat another'll float,
And she will watch my laddie row.
"And why," you ask, "to other loves
Do I resign my gondolier?"
"Because (ah, me! the cruelty!)
I am his maiden aunt, my dear."

—Cora Stuart Wheeler in Louisville Courier-Journal.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

"Debt—debt—nothing but debt," grumbled Maj. Monthill, as he tore open one after another the numerous letters which lay upon his 11 o'clock breakfast table. "If I was Midas himself I couldn't pay 'em all—and I wouldn't either. There's only one alternative left open to me that I know of—and that is marrying an heiress."

The major eyed himself critically in the opposite mirror. He was a tall, handsome Apollo of a military gentleman, with well preserved teeth, hair and whiskers, bright hazel eyes, and a general air of stylishness.

"Yes," quoth the major, "I must marry rich—and Letty Price is the woman. She's as ugly as a Gorgon—what very unpleasant looking females those Gorgons must have been, by the way, to get themselves such a reputation for horliness; but a man must overlook minor defects when his settlement in life is at stake. I've been a gay young bachelor long enough; I must really turn my attention seriously to Letty Price. But there are several preliminaries to be considered, and one is that she has a lover for every day in the week, and every lover I believe a more genuine fortune hunter than myself. It takes policy to outgeneral so many suitors, and I've got to look sharp if I expect to win the prize."

Miss Letty Price was rather after the Gorgon style of womankind. Maj. Monthill was right in his criticism of her style. She was fat and stout and ungraceful, with a dumpy figure, a short neck, greenish gray eyes, reddish brown hair, a turned up noose and teeth broken and decayed. Her complexion was muddy and her chin retreated, and altogether she was a picture that sorely needed the glitter of a golden frame to set it off. But then Miss Letty's grandfather was worth $200,000, and she was consequently what the newspapers call a "society favorite." People listened when she spoke, and laughed obsequiously at her jokes and admired her taste in dress, and Miss Letty, naturally of a confiding and credulous disposition, believed it all.

With Maj. Monthill to will was to do, and no sooner did he make up his mind that he must marry an heiress, and that heiress Miss Letitia Price, than he set vigorously about consummating the affair. Bouquets, drives in the Central park, books and photographs, soft glances and poetically flavored quotations were all alike the engines of his warfare; and when at length the time had arrived in his estimation to strike the final blow, he dressed himself in the guise of a Nineteenth century exquisite, and went to call on Miss Price.

"It seems to me," said the heiress, who had contrived to make her blowsy cheeks a shade blowsier than ever by a hideous ruby silk dress, with a scarlet cashmere scarf looped over it, "that you are unusually dull this evening, Maj. Monthill."

The major affected to start from a deep and absorbing reverie.

"Ah, Miss Price, you of all others should not reproach me with my lack of spirits," he said sentimentally.

"And why not?" demanded Miss Letty, with elephantine playfulness.

"Need you ask me when you know so well that my heart is racked by contending emotions."

"I'm sure," quoth the heiress, looking down at the point of her Marie Antoinette slippers, "I don't know why it should be racked."

"Because I love you, and I dare not speak my love!"

Miss Price colored and essayed a faint little giggle.

"I'm sure, major, I don't see any necessity for such timorousness."

"Because," impressively went on the major, looking unutterable things into the greenish gray orbs—his own eyes were an exquisite wine brown, and well he was aware of his advantages in this respect—"because you are rich and I am poor, and I have registered a solemn vow upon the tablets of my own soul never to wed an heiress!"

"La!" said Miss Price.

"Of all men," said Maj. Monthill, "I am the least mercenary. A roof to shelter me from the driving storm, a crust, a glass of clear cold water from the spring—that's all I want. Money I spurn, gold is my bugbear. And yet, dear Letitia—nay, let me call you thus for once—fate has decreed that I should hopelessly lose my heart to one who is unfortunately rich."

Miss Price burst into tears and impulsively put her fat hand into the major's slender palm.

"Don't talk that way, Marmaduke," she sobbed, "and don't look at me with those mournful eyes, or you'll break my heart."

"Letitia, do you then love me?"

"Yes, yes, I do," wailed the heiress. "I love you with all my soul."

"Alas!" groaned the major, "that two such hearts as ours should be parted by a wall of gold!"

"But they sha'n't be!" asserted Letty, her nose growing red and her eyes twinkling in the enthusiasm of the moment. "No, Marmaduke, no! Not if grandpapa was ten times as obstinate and pig headed as he is."

"My Letitia!" sighed the major, in a voice honey sweet, and as low as summer winds breathing o'er the twilight sea.

And when he left the Price mansion he had the satisfaction of knowing that he was Miss Letty's accepted lover.

He plunged ruthlessly into more debt the very next morning to the amount of $200, to buy a solitaire diamond ring to deck the fat forefinger of his affianced.

"It will be a mere drop in the bucket," he said to himself, "when I come to handle her cash. I hope the old gentleman means to place it entirely at her disposal, and I'll see to the rest."

And Maj. Monthill contracted for a pair of cream colored horses, a yacht and a cottage at Newport for the summer season, on the strength of his known engagement to old Zadoc Price's granddaughter.

Just at this time—life, we all know, is proverbially uncertain—Mr. Zadoc Price took it into his venerable head to have a stroke of apoplexy, and depart this existence without the ceremonial of more than two days' illness.

"The most sensible thing the old fudge could possibly have done," thought his dutiful grandson-in-law elect. "Letty'll come into her fortune now without any difficulty, and I shall be a made individual!"

He stopped at a hat store to get his hat draped in a suitable mourning weed, and thought it very becoming. The third day after the funeral he called on Letitia.

Miss Price received him in her new black suit, her nose swelled with much weeping, and her eyelids as pink as if they had been painted all round with a red lead pencil.

"Dear Letty," murmured the major, his voice attuned to the tenderest sympathy, "do not mourn too deeply! We must all die—and our departed friend had lived out the threescore and ten years allotted to man's life here below."

"I know it!" sniffed Letty, taking out her black bordered pocket handkerchief. "You are not bearing your grief all alone?" he asked.

"No; Cousin Bethuah Jenkins and her husband have been here for a week," Letty lugubriously answered.

Maj. Monthill pricked up his ears. Cousin Bethuah Jenkins? He had not hitherto been aware that his Letitia had any relatives save her grandsire. However, the $200,000 would well bear a few reversionary legacies, and this Cousin Bethuah was doubtless an attached relative whom it would be scarcely creditable for the old gentleman to omit entirely from his will.

"The only thing that I regret in this sudden and unlooked for dispensation of Providence, dearest Letty," went on our smooth tongued major, "is that it makes an heiress of you—and I believed that I have before expressed to you my horror of the imputation of wedding a rich wife."

"Don't let that trouble you, Marmy, dear!" cried Letty hysterically. "I—I meant to have told you all about it before, but somehow there never was a real good opportunity."

"Told me all about what, Letitia?" asked the major, in some surprise.

"About my quarrel with grandpapa last month. He said you were a fortune hunting miscreant—you dear Marmaduke!—and I never should have a cent from him if I married you. And then I repeated to him the noble words you had spoken, and he said—grandpapa always had an inelegant way of expressing himself—'that he'd settle your hash for you!' And he called me a fool, and we had an awful quarrel, and he made a new will, and left all his money to Cousin Bethuah Jenkins; but I don't care, Marmy, darling, for I knew," cried the disinherited damsel, with a fresh burst of tears, "that you loved me for myself alone, and not for mere filthy lucre!"

And so speaking, Letty Price flung her 167 solid pounds of dumpy humanity fondly into the major's arms.

Marmaduke Monthill felt like the man in the old tale who has sold his soul for forty pieces of gold, and finds the treasure changed into dead leaves. He had got Letty Price, but not Letty Price's fortune.

He went home, promising to call early the next morning. The next morning came, but not Maj. Monthill.

Miss Letty Price is living, a disappointed damsel, with her Cousin Bethuah, who is a good natured soul, and does not grudge the "bite and the sup" to the poor girl whom she really thinks has been used very ill both by her grandfather and the major. As for the gallant Marmaduke, nobody knows what has become of him, not even his Jewish creditors, who would certainly be the ones to find out, if any one could. The diamond solitaire is not yet paid for, and somebody else is living in the cottage at Newport this season.

But, after all, it is only one more illustration of the daily lesson we all read—the mutability of human affairs.—Helen Forrest Graves in New York Weekly

THE LAST GUN.

The Eve of Election in Pasadena.

A ROUSING CELEBRATION

In Honor of Col. Markham—A Meeting for the Masses—Former Triumphs to be Eclipsed—Turn Out.

Tonight will be a gala and long-to-be-remembered occasion in Pasadena. The city's favorite son who was welcomed here with such enthusiasm after the Republicans of the State had honored him with the nomination to the highest office in their power, is today coming home again after a compaign than which none more interesting has ever been chronicled in California.

Col. Markham returns home today after a triumphal tour throughout the length and breadth of the State. Every town and city he has visited greeted him with wonderful enthusiasm and accorded him the heartiest welcome in their power. The last night of the struggle, the eve of election day will find him in Pasadena. Surely his own friends and neighbors should see to it that his home reception eclipses all that have gone before, and this is about what they propose to do.

Col. Markham will arrive from Pomona at 6 o'clock. He will be met at the station by the Reception Committee, a band and large delegations from the Republican clubs. He will proceed directly to his residence, where he will only have time for a hurried meal. At 7 o'clock the procession will form at Colorado street and Pasadena avenue, and as soon as Col. Markham arrives on the scene, will proceed east as far as Los Robles avenue, then countermarch to Fair Oaks. It is intended that the procession shall eclipse anything of the kind ever seen here. A number of visiting clubs have signified their intention of being present and the home clubs are a host in themselves. Among others in line will be the famous flambeau club of Los Angeles. C. C. Brown will be marshal.

The exercises at the stand will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Hon. P M. Green will preside. An address of welcome will be made and speeches will follow by Col. Markham and other distinguished speakers.

Now let every citizen turn out and make this closing meeting a signal success. Haymarket Square will hold a good many people. It should be occupied, every inch of it. Let the residences and business houses be decorated and illuminated, and everybody take a hand in doing honor to our distinguished townsman, who tomorrow will be elected Governor of California by a handsome majority.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Buckley and Pond and their immediate followers are the worst-rattled crowd in the State. At the last moment our townsman, Dr. Conger, has been called upon to help them out, but as might naturally be expected the stories about Col. Markham which Dr. Conger persists in relating, although long since proven false, have fallen awfully flat. From all quarters comes the information that it is too late. The fool bosses at headquarters have already lost the fight.

The Democrats who had so much money to bet on their standard-bearer early in the campaign keep themselves very quiet nowadays.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra made a successful debut yesterday. It should be made a permanent institution.

Let the paraders see to it that the fireworks they handle prove dangerous to neither persons nor property.

We suggest "See the Conquering Hero Comes" as an appropriate air for the bands to discourse.

We have it that when the local Democracy meets the swallows homeward fly.

The grand-stand decorations will prove a feature of the occasion.

Attend the meeting tonight and take your voice with you.

Make way for the Markham marchers.

Tomorrow ends the trouble.

BREVITIES.

The sun kept going at full blast yesterday.

H. J. Vail was up from Santa Ana yesterday.

Fires in the mountain cañons continue to burn.

H. R. Hertel returned from San Francisco on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormiston were up from their Azusa ranch yesterday.

Soda water and soft drinks generally were in lively demand yesterday.

The boys and girls rejoice because there will be no school tomorrow.

On account of tonight's meeting the usual drill of company B will be omitted.

The sign-post at the corner of Los Robles avenue and Colorado street is flat on the ground.

There were many late risers yesterday as a result of the blow-out in Los Angeles Saturday night.

The athletes are hard at work for the Thanksgiving sports. Some records are likely to be smashed.

Officer Robins was waiting yesterday, Micawber-like, for something to turn up. But nothing occurred to mar the day's solemnity.

Cards are out announcing the wedding of Hancock Banning and Miss Anne Smith, daughter of Col. George H. Smith of Los Angeles. The ceremony will be solemnized November 12, in St. Paul's Church, Los Angeles. Mr. Banning's many friends in Pasadena extend hearty congratulations.

Nationalist Club.

At the meeting yesterday a piano solo was rendered by Miss Edna Larkin, after which Charlotte Perkins Stetson delivered an eloquent and logical address upon the theme, "Unnecessary Evils." She held that poverty, sickness and crime are the inevitable results of our present social conditions; that the condition of nine-tenths of the human race is such that they must live crippled if they live at all. For this condition of affairs Mrs. Stetson did not blame the aristocratic class, but rather the masses, whom, she said, have the power to improve their condition as soon as they will. There was a large attendance. Several short speeches were made.

CHIEF HENNESSY'S MURDER.

A Sensational Crime Which Has Startled the City of New Orleans.

Only the level headedness of a few leading men has prevented the great city of New Orleans from becoming the scene of a fierce riot, having for its object the extermination of the Italians. As it is, the feeling against these foreign residents is most bitter.

The trouble began some months ago with acts of violence involving Italians who were at feud with each other. Cutting and stabbing became so frequent in the prosecution of the vendetta that Chief of Police David C. Hennessy began a special investigation of the matter, with a view to the restoration of law and order and the punishment of the criminals. He pushed his inquiries so vigorously that, in the course of time, he had collected a mass of valuable information bearing on Italian assassinations and the methods of the Mafia and kindred secret societies.

The other evening he started to walk home, his companion being Capt. Connor. At a corner the two friends separated. Half a block further on Hennessy was confronted by a man who fired on him with a double barreled shotgun. The load of slugs tore through the chief's body, but he did not fall. Instead he drew his revolver and began a battle with his assailant. Another fiend crept behind him and sent a second volley of missiles into the victim's person, whose left side was literally torn away. Then the murderers fled just as Capt. Connor, who had been alarmed by the shooting, ran up. Hennessy had just strength enough left to gasp out:

DAVID C. HENNESSY.

"The Dagos did it."

Then he fainted away, and at 9 the next morning he was a corpse. Pursuit and arrest of suspected persons followed fast. A householder named Peeler, in front of whose residence the foul deed was committed, identified several of the prisoners as the men engaged in the murder. A street electric light had given him a good view of the combat. A day or so later Thomas Duffy, a friend of the slain chief, called at the jail for the purpose, as he said, of identifying one of the accused named Scaffedi. His intent was a more deadly one, however, for when brought face to face with the prisoner he shot him down and then surrendered to the authorities.

Scaffedi before he expired asserted his innocence, but gave information which led to fresh arrests. Scores of Italians are either in custody or under surveillance, and public feeling runs so high that many of the race have thought best to leave New Orleans. Until the really guilty are brought to justice it looks as if the whole colony will remain in bad odor and under suspicion. Witness Peeler has received numerous letters threatening his life, and is given police protection.

Life Savers Rewarded.

Jesse Howland and James McMahon received unusual honors at the hands of the United States government the other day. They were met at a New York hotel by a representative of the treasury department, and in the presence of a number of people each was presented with a gold medal and a letter of honor from Secretary Windom. This was their reward for saving the life of James Speedwell who but for them would have drowned in the surf at Normandie-by-the-Sea, N. J., one afternoon last summer. The rescue was effected with immense difficulty, and was witnessed by many distinguished people, among them being Governor Hill, of New York. A proper statement of the case was made to the Washington authorities, who were so impressed by the gallantry of Howland and McMahon that they ordered struck two gold medals instead of the customary silver testimonials.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA RAIL

The City Council will meet at the regular hour this morning.

Saturday there were forty-four real estate transfers, the total consideration being $84,903.

The churches were all well attended yesterday, both at the morning and evening services.

The overland trains on both the Southern Pacific and Santa Fé were reported on time yesterday.

The Ladies' Annex of the Chamber of Commerce will hold their regular weekly meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

John McCarty was arrested on Spring street yesterday afternoon by Officer Hawley, and locked up on a charge of begging.

Senator Stanford left in his special train for San Diego yesterday morning, and Mrs. Stanford was a passenger on train 18 for San Francisco at noon yesterday.

There are undelivered telegrams at the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, corner of Court and Main streets. November 2, for T. S. Scott, W. Hughes, Dr. J. H. Johnson.

There was some talk yesterday about trading off on the District Attorneyship. As far as could be learned, there was nothing in the rumor, as McLachlan's friends were standing solidly by him, and he will probably poll the full strength of his ticket.

The meteorological summary of the United States Signal Service for October shows that the mean temperature for the month was 68°. The highest temperature was on the 21st and 27th, when the thermometer reached 99°, and the lowest was on the 10th, when 46° was registered.

The members and friends of John A. Logan Relief Corps and Post visited the Soldiers' Home Saturday, where the day was pleasantly spent in cheering up the old veterans. An interesting musical and literary programme was given, which was heartily enjoyed by those present.

Not a single arrest was made by the police force from Saturday evening up to last evening. In view of the immense crowds on the streets Saturday afternoon, to witness the Republican demonstration, this is a remarkable occurence and speaks volumes for the law and order of the city.

Henry C. Vitalini of No. 1732 Olympia street, writes THE TIMES to deny that he is the N. H. Vitaline mentioned in the report of the proceedings of the Board of Police Commissioners, published in THE TIMES of October 29, as the former proprietor of the old Philadelphia beer hall.

Thomas Mitchell, a plasterer by trade and a would-be bad man, was taken to the police station yesterday afternoon by Officers Bowler and Harris, and locked up on a charge of battery. Mitchell made an unprovoked assault on a young man, a stranger in the city, who mistook him for someone else and spoke to him.

Frederick Granville Stewart, a well-known young man of this city, died suddenly at Arrowhead Springs last Friday, and was buried at San Bernardino yesterday. Mr. Stewart went to Arrowhead for treatment for rheumatism, but had a hemorage that resulted fatally. Mr. Stewart was a native of England, but had been living in Los Angeles for some time past, where he had many friends.

The Butchers' Society gave a very successful picnic and dance yesterday afternoon at the City Gardens. The day was spent in outdoor games and dancing. During the afternoon a barbecue took place that was highly enjoyed by all present. Dancing was continued in the evening until a late hour. Altogether it was a very successful picnic.

Al. Hechtman left for San Francisco yesterday on a business trip.

CATARRH,

THROAT DISEASES, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS AND CONSUMPTION

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.

M. D., M. C. P. S. O.,
137 SOUTH BROADWAY,
Los Angeles, Cal.,

By his Aerean system of practice, which consists of proper Medicated Inhalations and COMPOUND OXYGEN TREATMENT.

Probably no system of practice ever employed has been so universally successful as the Aerean system of practice as introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at its remarkable tendency to contract fresh cold. Indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptons soon appear and he learns to his horror that, instead of recovering from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat or it appears that some foreign substance as, for instance, a hair obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue; the breath lessens on a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by and by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error that has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.
